43 MEN DEAD IN MINE HORROR, 19 ARE OVERCOME

MULGA, Ala., April 21.—It was learned to-day that forty-three men lost their lives in the "model" mine of the Birmingham Railway, Coal and Iron Company in an explosion which occurred last night. Rescuers reached the bottom of the shaft to-day and found no signs of life.

Twenty-one members of the rescue parties were overcome by fire damp and brought out of the mine.

THIRTEEN WHITES AND THIRTY NEGROES PERISHED.

Official announcement was made that thirteen white men and thirty negroes were in the mines when the explosion occurred. All are undoubtedly dead.

The men were trapped by the explosion at 9 o'clock last night and practically all hope for their rescue was given up then, though desperate efforts were made to reach them. Air was pumped into the blazing shaft all night, but it was believed that if the men were not killed by the terrific blast that rocked the country for miles around they had been burned or suffocated. The foreman was among those killed in the mine. Only he knew the exact number of men at work at the time.

At the first report of the disaster relief was rushed from Ensley, six miles southwest. Ambulances and medical supplies in charge of every available doctor and nurse were sent, and further aid was sent from here. Early to-day the ambulance car of the Birmingham Southern Railroad was dispatched.

All night long relays of men attempted to gain entrance to the mine, only to be driven back again and again.

Only those within the mine could know the cause of the explosion. The report shook the country, however, and brought within a short time an emergency force of rescuers to the mine, which has been worked for only two years. It was equipped with all modern appliances and was regarded as the safest in the State.

The explosion threw the little settlement about the mine into a panic. The terror was increased by the pillar of fire that shot from the shaft and destroyed communication. This blazing geyser, rising to a height of a hundred feet, could be seen for miles about and its smoke still hung in a heavy cloud at dawn to-day.

FAMINE IN MILK FEARED

Frank Perkins of Newburyport, a director of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producing Company, to-day declared that if the big Boston contracting companies did not come to the terms of the milk raisers by May 1, thirty-three of the thirty-six cars of milk coming to this city would be held back.

In other words, the milk producers threaten a milk famine for Boston if the jobbers don't pay them what they demand for their milk for the next six months. The demand of the producers is for practically the same prices they have heretofore received for their milk in Winter.

The three largest milk contracting firms in this city declare that they cannot pay Winter prices for milk in Summer and then sell the milk to the people at Summer retail prices.

Will Hold Back Supply.

All over New England and eastern New York directors and agents of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producing Company are to-day visiting the farmers who sell their milk for the Boston trade. Yesterday from seventy to eighty farmers were seen and they agreed to hold back not less than twelve carloads of milk if their terms were not met by the jobbers by May 1.

"The farmers who compose the Boston Co-operative Milk Producing Company have made their terms for milk for the next six months," said Director Perkins. "The Winter schedule prevails until May 1, after which a new deal goes into effect. Representatives of the company have met in Boston in the past month from all the eastern towns and cities of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Maine and New Hampshire and all have agreed to insist upon our terms. The three large Boston milk contractors have refused to come to our terms. If we don't get the price we demand over thirty-three cars of milk daily will be held back."

"We are working on a close margin now," said Charles P. Hood of H. P. Hood & Son, to-day. "If the terms of the producers are fair we will meet them. If they are not fair we will still do the best we can for the public. We are commission men. We have stood for all we can. We neither accepted nor rejected the terms of the producers. The whole matter has been open."

Fight Only Begun.

Charles Whiting of D. Whiting & Sons said: "We don't intend to allow our trade to suffer. We will supply it no matter what happens. We will get milk somewhere."

Walter A. Hunter, secretary of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' Association, said to-day that the revolt against the contractors had just begun. The farmers of Hardwick, Barre and New Braintree, it is said, are all firm for Winter prices for Summer milk, but they go farther and most of them are saying that they prefer not to send any milk here even at Winter prices.

MARK TWAIN RALLIES AND WIELDS PEN

REDDING, Ct., April 21.—Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), humorist and philosopher, even in the face of death, is putting up a heroic fight for his life, although no hope is held out for his recovery.

He was so strengthened by stimulants to-day that he was able to sit up in bed for a short time. He chatted with the members of his family and the attendants, frequently jesting, though he knew the seriousness of his condition.

After he sat up a while Mr. Clemens declared he felt strong enough to write. This he was permitted to do. It was not to make the world laugh, however, that the aged author assumed his favorite position for work—lying down. On December 20, on his return from the first of his two visits to Bermuda this Winter, he said to his interviewers: "Boys, there will be no more work for me in this world."

To-day he devoted himself to a few affairs, writing to his publishers and others. He declined to dictate, professing his own strength so insistently that his physician feared to irritate him by a flat refusal. Then he demanded a cigar. For the last year he has been on an allowance of only four a day, which he has felt keenly as his allowance for years was ten times that daily. This excessive smoking is said to be the cause of his illness—tobacco heart.

Albert Bigelow Paine, his secretary, he consulted to-day in regard to business affairs. Almost his last act yesterday before he suffered his sinking spell was to draw a check for $6,000 in favor of the Redding library and direct Mr. Paine to forward it. Mr. Clemens practically founded the library. Mr. Clemens was much cheered to-day by the attentions of his daughter, Mrs. Ossip Gabrilowitch, who remained within call of the sickroom or at the bedside all night long. She continued her vigil to-day with unceasing attention. Mrs. Gabrilowitch attempted to dissuade her father from writing, but he silenced her with a laugh.

CHINESE MOBS RAID MISSION; ARMY MUTINY

HANKOW, April 21.—Fresh riots have broken out in Hunan Province, and another mission, at Yiyang, has been demolished.

Riots have occurred at Yochow and Ningsiang, twenty miles south of Yiyang and thirty miles west of Changsha.

Several regiments are reported to have mutinied. Foreigners are in flight.

PEKIN, April 21.—Rioting is still going on in Hunan province about Chang Sha, where mobs last week wrecked foreign property and drove out the missionaries.

The scarcity of rice has caused further disorders. Demands for compensation have been presented to the government by the British and Japanese Ministers. The consulates of their governments were attacked by mobs.

England and Japan demand the opening of another port to foreign trade as penalty and the punishment of the ringleaders.

MRS. SMITH PROTESTS ZOO.

Mrs. Huntington Smith, president of the Animal Rescue League, in a communication to Mayor Fitzgerald to-day, protested against the establishment of a zoological garden by the city. "The plea that a zoological garden is educational is only an excuse for starting an expensive form of amusement for the public," Mrs. Smith wrote.

LUNCHEON FOR CAMERON.

The Canadians of Boston are particularly pleased over the outcome of the Marathon race, and on Friday at the City Club the Canadian Club of Boston will entertain at luncheon Fred Cameron, the Nova Scotian who won the contest.

HARBOR MEASURES BEFORE CHAMBER

The re-location of the harbor line and the "Ocean mail bill" are two subjects which are to be discussed at the monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon. H. R. Wellman, secretary of the Retail Trade Board, is interesting Boston business men in the plan to secure 1,000 members for that department.

"THE SPENDTHRIFT"

A Powerful Story of American Life

This great novel tells:

How a woman ruined her husband; how her expensive habits made him bankrupt; how she sacrificed herself too late to save him; how the love of a good husband conquered.

It tells a story that every man and woman should read.

It is a stirring romance of life.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 21.—Prospects for favorable conditions of wind and water for this afternoon's race between the crews of Harvard and the Naval Academy were excellent this forenoon. For the first time this week there was quiet water in the harbor and Severn River, and it was planned to use the outer course. The race will start promptly at 4 o'clock. Courtney Guild of Boston is the referee.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer and party arrived on the Dolphin this morning to see the race. The secretary was given a salute of nineteen guns. With Secretary Meyer were Mrs. Meyer and Misses Meyer, Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Beckman Winthrop, Rear-Admiral and Mrs. Richardson Clover and a number of young people.

There was an air of quiet confidence around Harvard quarters, and they were somewhat the favorites in the race. With their great weight and strength and fine watermanship they had made a most favorable impression during the week. The crew was out a short time this forenoon and practiced start and short spurts.

The official weight of the oarsmen show that the Harvard aggregation averages just three and one-eighth pounds heavier than the midshipmen, less than had been generally thought. Both crews are heavier than the average for a number of years and both contain a large number of veterans.

Harvard has three men who rowed in the champion varsity four, and the others rowed in the freshmen or four boats. Harvard averages 178⅝ pounds and the naval academy 175¼.

Navy Much Lighter.

Four of the navy oarsmen were first crew men last season and all of the others rowed to a greater or less extent under Glendon in previous seasons. Much depends upon Weems who, though an oarsman of the least experience in the boat, will stroke the crew.

He rowed but a few weeks last season, on the fourth class oar. He has made great progress this year, and is very strong and game, and is expected to do his part. Besides being outweighed, the Navy must carry ten pounds more in its coxswain, Williams weighing 115 and King of Harvard 105.

It is certain that the race will be hard and close. Three boats will follow the crews over the course. The Manly, a torpedo boat, will carry the referee, coaches and other officials. The Bagley will carry the Navy crew squad and Harvard representatives, and the Standish will be reserved for navy officers and their families.

SHAW, DIVORCED, TO HAVE CHARGE OF YOUNG SON

Former Senator James F. Shaw of Manchester and Boston, whose wife, Mrs. Nettie E. Shaw, daughter of H. Fisher Eldredge, the millionaire brewer of Portsmouth, N. H., was granted a divorce by Judge Marcus Morton in the Superior Court in Salem, will have control of the education of his thirteen-year-old son, Eldredge Fullerton Shaw. The boy is now at St. Andrew's School, Concord.

Mrs. Shaw, by Judge Morton's decree made to-day, is given the right to visit her son at school as often as once in two weeks. The father can see the boy at any time.

During vacation times the custody of the son will be divided equally between Senator Shaw and his former wife.

The decision of the court provides that no alimony, expenses or counsel fees are to be decreed to either Mr. or Mrs. Shaw.

SEVEN GET AWAY FROM FEDERAL JAIL

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kas., April 21.—Two life convicts to-day escaped from the federal prison. Both are heavily armed. They raced down the road to the Union Pacific railroad tracks, overpowered the crew on a switch engine and, taking possession of the engine, started westward. About two miles from the penitentiary they abandoned the locomotive and took to the woods. The prison guards with a company of United States regulars are now in pursuit of the men. During the excitement six prisoners, under the guard of one sentry, who were employed in the Fort Leavenworth Union Pacific yards unloading supplies for the prison, made their escape. One prisoner, losing his nerve at the last moment, did not go with his companions. The five joined the two on the engine.

T. E. BYRNES TO SPEAK.

Timothy E. Byrnes, vice-president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, will discuss some of the railroad problems of Boston and New England at the Twentieth Century Club, No. 3 Joy street, next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A discussion will follow.

RUTH WHEELER BURNED ALIVE DOCTOR DECLARES

Victim's Dead Hand Clasping Bit of Hair Produced in Evidence Against Accused Slayer—Dramatic Scene at Trial.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The fireplace in which the still living body of Ruth Wheeler was partly incinerated was to-day set up in court. The places which Wolter is said to have painted to hide blood stains were pointed out by the prosecutor. The accused man kept his gaze averted from the exhibit.

The chief emotion of Wolter is vanity. When the trial went on the prisoner, sleek, smiling and apparently ignorant of the gravity of his predicament, took from his pocket a large envelope containing every picture of himself and every newspaper article that has appeared since the trial began. For some time he looked at them proudly.

The first witness to-day was John Mohl, recalled to tell more of the shirt which was found wrapped about the remains of Ruth Wheeler. The shirt has been identified as Wolter's. Cross-examined by W. D. Scott, chief counsel for Wolter, Mohl testified that every one on the top floor of the house had access to the kitchen adjoining Wolter's two rooms.

Prisoner Will be a Witness.

Basing their whole fight on the attempt to establish an alibi, the counsel for Wolter said they would call the defendant himself to the stand. Besides him only two witnesses to corroborate his story will be called.

Before calling to the stand Katie Mueller, who posed as Wolter's wife, the prosecution intimated that the girl's testimony would pave the way for the introduction of a mysterious witness whose existence has been unsuspected hitherto, with a story that riddles Wolter's contentions.

The most effective of the many damaging points brought out was the introduction of Ruth Wheeler's ring, found in the fireplace in his room where the body was partially burned, and of the dead girl's hand, clutching a wisp of hair, which Professor G. S. Huntington swore was not from her own head—pitiful testimony of the girl's struggle.

Long before the time set for the opening of to-day's session crowds gathered, attempting to gain entrance. Women predominated.

When Mrs. John Mohl, wife of the janitor, was called to the stand she testified that she had never seen strangers going to Wolter's room, but said she had seen a girl, presumably Ruth Wheeler, go to his room on the day of the murder.

Police Inspector Titus identified beads and other bits of evidence found in Wolter's rooms.

The evidence of the fire with which the murderer attempted to hide the deed is the most significant of all the testimony offered in court, for in that blackened, fingerless stump, the palm of which has been protected from the flames, was clutched a dozen short brown hairs, in color and HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, April 21.—It was good-by day for the Statesmen, the Washington club playing its last game of the series with the Red Sox. The team will get out of town to-night, making way for Connie Mack's Athletics from Philadelphia.

Manager McAleer only brought five pitchers over with him from Washington. They are Johnson, Oberlin, Gray, Groome and Walker. Three of them have already worked, which leaves Groome and Walker, a ne winah. Each of them warmed up this afternoon.

McAleer is still under suspension for his back-talk to Umpire Connolly on Tuesday, but the suspension is only a farce. Mac is simply barred from appearing on the field in a uniform. He is saved the bother of changing his clothes and just sits in the box next the Washington players' bench and from that point directs his men. If it becomes necessary to discipline a manager, Ban Johnson will have to thing up some other plan than the one now in vogue. Perhaps barring them from the grounds entirely during a suspension would have the desired effect.

Donovan had Arellanes and Karger left of his first flight of pitchers, and they both warmed up for the fray. The Speed Boys promised to cut out the dopey playing and attend strictly to business to-day. The weather was pleasant, and there was a good-sized crowd out to see the wind-up of the series.

WORLD PEACE PLAN OF SECRETARY KNOX

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Ultimate disarmament of the nations of the world is practicable in the opinion of Secretary Knox. He believes the establishment of a court of arbitral justice, to which nations of the world may appeal for the settlement of their controversies, will have the effect, as its own natural consequence, of not merely reducing armaments, but ultimately of rendering large armaments unnecessary. His plan for the establishment of an international court of arbitral justice, which was outlined in an identical note sent in the Fall of last year to various nations, is said to be meeting with general favor, and Mr. Knox believes that such a court will be constituted at The Hague in the near future.

BROCKTON, April 21.—Andrew Carnegie, through his private secretary, James Bertram of New York, has formally offered the city of Brockton a $75,000 public library building, with two conditions attached to the gift. The city government must agree to appropriate not less than $7,500 annually for the maintenance of the library, and also provide a suitable site free from encumbrances.

POLO GROUNDS, New York, April 21.—The Doves came on the field this afternoon with a determination to wipe out yesterday's defeat. They felt confident of reversing the verdict. With the opening festivities out of the way there was nothing to hinder them attending strictly to business.

It was a nice day and a large crowd was out to root for the Giants. It was expected that McGraw would send either Ames or Raymond to the mound, reserving Mathewson for to-morrow, when the Giants tackle a new club. Lake had Curtis, Wolfgang and Kirb White ready for the word and all three of them looked good in warming up stunts.

The Doves took a long session at batting practice before the game began. Lake realizes that his team is weakest at this point. His pitchers can't win all their games. It will take plenty of stick work to keep the Doves in the first division.

"The Giants have nothing on us," declared Lake to the reporters this afternoon. "We showed in Boston that we can come from behind and defeat them. I look for another win this afternoon unless Mathewson pitches and at that we are not afraid if he does go in."

WIFE GETS MILLION WITH HER DIVORCE

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., April 21.—Sherwood Aldrich, multi-millionaire mining man of this city and New York, principal stockholder in the Ray Copper Mining Company of Arizona, has been sued for divorce by Florence M. Aldrich. The nominal charge is desertion. Society was shocked by the announcement and there is much gossip as to the real cause of the trouble. No demand was made for alimony in the suit, but it is known that Aldrich has already given his wife $500,000 and it is reported that he will give her a half a million dollars more when the divorce is granted.

GILLETT AFTER AGE PENSIONS

WASHINGTON, April 21.—A comprehensive scheme for the retirement of superannuated employes of the Government is embodied in a bill which Representative Gillett of Massachusetts, chairman of the House committee on reform in the civil service, reported to the House. It is estimated that the plan for the pensioning of clerks too old to continue good service would cost $1,000,000 for about thirty-five years, after which it would become self-supporting.

CHILDREN SEE A SHOW.

One hundred and fifty little ones from the Home for Catholic Destitute Children were the guests yesterday afternoon of Dr. John Dixwell, who took the children to the Globe Theatre to see Hanlon's "Superba." The management furnished them with seats in the balcony, and for two hours the youngsters showed their appreciation of the performance with howls of laughter and generous applause.

$100,000 FIRE AT LYNN, WORK OF INCENDIARY

LYNN, April 21.—A fire that destroyed two large factory buildings in the Harbor street district early to-day, at a loss estimated at $100,000, is believed by the police to be the work of a firebug. To-day the State police are co-operating with the Lynn police in an effort to bring the incendiary to earth.

The fire is the third within a week in the district, and the police are now owrking on a clew which they say will result in an arrest.

The fire to-day was the most destructive Lynn has had in a long period and burned a long time, necessitating a general alarm calling out every piece of fire apparatus in the city.

Three Fires Within Week.

Within a week there have been two other fires in the neighborhood and the mystery surrounding the origin of each has now started both State and local police to investigating.

The three-story building occupied by Shea and Donnell, 400 feet long and 75 feet wide, was the first to be destroyed. Then followed the destruction of the three-story building occupied by the Gem Leather Company, New England Laundry Company, owned by Henry Maxwell, a former Lynn Alderman who recently purchased the laundry, and the firm of Lyons & Hershenshon, manufacturers of leather.

The blaze was first seen by Henry M. Lewis, a night watchman, who turned in an alarm from box 23, known as the dread fire box.

Shortly after, an engineer on one of the Narrow Gauge locomotives saw the flames and sounded a warning with his whistle, giving the fire signal.

John Coyne, living at No. 18 Alley street, also turned in an alarm from box 224, while Chief Harris sent in the general alarm shortly after his arrival.

Dozen Horses Rescued.

One of the sensational rescues made was of a dozen horses from burning stables back of the factories, by Patrolmen Rowe, Teel and Tierney, at the risk of their own lives.

The firemen worked bravely in the midst of dangers that assailed them from all sides, and it is considered a miracle that nobody was hurt. The flames leaped high in the air, being fed by chemicals and material in the factories that burned like kindling wood.

MOTHER MADE ILL BY BOY'S LEAVING

The AMERICAN has been asked to assist in finding Albert Rose, aged seventeen, who ran away from his home at No. 143 Havre street, East Boston. One night this week he packed up his suit case and let himself out of the house to join a boy companion and go in search of wealth and fame. His mother, Mrs. Rose, has been made ill by her boy's departure.

'DAKOTA DAN' FILES APPEAL, ASKS ACCOUNT

Four claims of appeal from Judge Lawton's decision given April 14, in which he declared that claimant No. 1 to the Russell fortune, or "Dakota Dan," is an impostor, were filed with Assistant Register of Probate Charles N. Harris at the East Cambridge Court House to-day. The document was received by mail from Nelson L. Sheldon, local counsel for "Dakota Dan."

The first of the four claims asks that a new bond be required from Ferdinand B. Almy and William C. Russell. The second asks for an accounting and distribution of the estate of which these two men are receivers, namely, the property left to Daniel Blake Russell by his mother, Mary L. Russell. The third seeks an accounting of the entire estate, and the fourth the distribution of the entire estate.

Each of the four claims is signed boldly, Daniel Blake Russell. The signature is in ink. Usually the signature of the claimant for an appeal is typewritten.

The next step for the attorneys for claimant No. 1 will be the filing of their reasons for appeal with the Supreme Court. This is expected within a few days.

Senator Leslie A. Simpson, counsel for the claimant, is elated over the result of a trip he has made to aMlone, N. Y., in response to a telegram regarding Jessie Carpenter, a woman with whom Dakota Dan is said to have lived two years. He said:

"I don't want to tell just now what I discovered, but I will say that it is of vital importance to my client. When our case is resumed in the Supreme Court, this evidence will be the first which I shall offer. It is something that I have been looking for for more than a year."

DROP IN PRICES IS JUST FICTION

In spite of the stories which have appeared in Boston and New York papers that there has been an appreciable drop in the prices of food stuffs during the last three months, a canvass of several of the large retail grocery houses to-day proves that there has been no such reduction here. As a matter of fact, many of the staple groceries are higher than at a corresponding date last year, and despite the "meat boycott" prices are as high as before. Beans, flour, barley and canned goods remain at the same price, while eggs and sugar are higher. The only staples which have felt a drop in price are potatoes and prunes.

A drop in salt is promised for next month.

PATTEN FEARS COTTON MILLS MUST CLOSE

NEW YORK, April 21.—The United States Attorney General's so-called inquiry into the alleged bull pool in cotton is nothing more nor less than a political move on the part of the national administration, according to James J. Patten, the bull operator, and C. I. Hudson, head of the brokerage firm of C. I. Hudson & Co., members of the New York Cotton Exchange and one of the largest dealers in the community.

Mr. Patten said:

"I don't think there is going to be any corner in cotton, and even if there should be it will not be because of my operations. The price of cotton is simply due to the fact that the supply is not as great as the demand. I believe that every cotton mill in the world will have to shut down next August and September, simply because there will be nothing for them to work with.

"This whole scrap is due to an attempt to force me out of the market. Cotton is being brought here now at a loss to frighten me, but I am not going to lose my nerve. I have been and am buying cotton on the theory of supply and demand. That is the only theory I work on."

"Politics, and nothing but politics, is at the bottom of this so-called inquiry," added Mr. Hudson. "The administration wants to sidetrack the widespread comment on the tariff and the high cost of living.

"If the government were really sincere in its investigation," continued Mr. Hudson, "there wouldn't be any investigation. It is a notable thing that the inquiry affects only that part of the country from which the Republican party gets fewest votes. The same inquiry might be made in regard to the situation in the grain market, only that would affect the strongholds of Republican votes. Therefore, there is no grain inquiry."

HELD IN $2,000 FOR CAR DEATH

Motorman John J. Walsh, whose outward-bound Chestnut Hill car killed Miss Bridget Walsh, and seriously injured Miss Minnie Adams last night in the Chestnut Hill district of Newton, was to-day held for the Grand Jury next week in $2,000 bail by Judge Perkins in the Brookline District Court. Manslaughter is the charge.

Miss Adams is on the dangerous list at the Massachusetts General Hospital. Bridget Walsh was employed as a cook in the home of T. T. Baldwin, No. 564 Hammond street, Newton. Miss Adams has been employed as a nurse in the Baldwin home. Last night the two young women left the Baldwin house to go to Boston. When they reached Bolyston street they saw their car standing at the crossing. They hurried to catch it and ran almost in front of an approaching outward-bound car piloted by Motorman Walsh. They struck the side of the car and Miss Walsh was hurled toward the sidewalk. She was instantly killed.

AMES WANTS FOSS'S CONGRESS SEAT

Friends of William R. Buchanan of Brockton, who was defeated for Congress by Eugene N. Foss in the special congressional election last month, are backing Ex-Representative William Ames of North Easton for the Republican nomination in the election next Fall. This is a move to prevent the nomination of Judge Robert W. Harris, whose opposition is held responsible for the defeat of Buchanan. It is among the possibilities that Judge Harris will be accorded the Democratic nomination.

PUT YOUR "TIPS" ON EXPENSE BILL

NEW YORK, April 21.—Tips to parlor car porters and waiters on business trips of city officials are legitimate items in expense accounts and must be paid by the city, according to Corporation Counsel Watson. Comptroller Prendergast objected to items of tips to porters and waiters in the expense account put in by the Catskill water supply commissioners. The Comptroller also asked about parlor car seats and parlor car meals. The corporation counsel ruled that tipping has become established to such an extent that it is taken into account in fixing porters' and waiters' wages, and that tips have become part of meal expenses, and that, if the city is liable for the cost of the meal, it is liable for the tip, too.

DR. HALE CHOSEN FOR AGASSIZ PLACE

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Dr. George E. Hale, director of the Carnegie Solar Observatory, with headquarters at Mount Pleasant, Cal., has been selected as its foreign secretary by the National Academy of Sciences, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Alexander Agassiz of Cambridge, Mass. Dr. Hale has been a member of the academy for several years and has taken a prominent part in the scientific work being done by the Carnegie Institution in California.

MERCHANT FOUND DEAD.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Carl W. E. Isendrath, vice-president of the Monarch Leather Company and well known as a club man, was found dead in his room here. Death had been caused by a bullet from a hunting rifle. Members of the family declare that the shooting was accidental. The police are investigating.

RUTH WHEELER CASE WARNING TO MOTHERS, SAYS OLGA NETHERSOLE

length identical with the hair on the head of Wolter.

The palm of the hand had escaped destruction because it was pressed tightly against the upper part of the chest.

When the fact was brought out, and Dr. George S. Huntington testified what the charred stump in his rubber gloved hand meant, no person in the court room showed more lively curiosity than Wolter himself.

"Vote to free Albert Wolter or you will die," is the tenor of a letter received by William G. Campbell, a juror. Juror Campbell handed the letter to Judge Foster when court opened to-day. Mr. Campbell received the letter last night at his home. The defendant, Judge Foster and Assistant District Attorney Moss have all received many letters, but this is the first threat.

Adelaide Wheeler destroyed beyond hope the contention of Wolter's attorney that he would be able to cast a doubt on the identification of the body. Adelaide Wheeler made the identification positive, stating in the strongest terms that she recognized the charred body as that of her younger sister, Ruth, and identified bit after bit of half burned clothing.

Miss Pearl Wheeler, another sister, was equally positive in her identification of the bits of clothing.

When Adelaide Wheeler told of her first meeting with Albert Wolter in the bedroom of the East Seventy-Fifth street house and described with burning cheeks the unmentionable insult which the boy had offered her, a low mutter ran about the court room.

Wolter Does Not Flinch.

Wolter met the battery of eyes without flinching as much as a hair's breadth although the story which the girl told was enough to make any man blush for shame that such a thing could happen.

Briefly stated, yesterday's progress of the trial clinched beyond doubt the identification of the body, brought proof that the body partially destroyed in the fire place was the body afterward found on the fire escape and furnished an unmistakable motive for the murder of Ruth Wheeler by bringing incontrovertible proof that the girl had been attacked before her death.

After the noon adjournment Coroner's Physician O'Hanlon testified making the autopsy on the body of Ruth Wheeler.

His testimony proves conclusively that the girl was still breathing when she was thrust into the fireplace, for soot was found in the passages leading to her lungs.

Professor John Henry Larkin, of Columbia University, testified that he made two visits to the Wolter apartment, where he found in the fireplace a portion of the frontal bone of a human skull. Then quietly and in one short sentence Professor Larkin told how the microscope produced unquestionable evidence that murder had been preceded by another crime.

Sister Resembles Victim.

A sensation was created when the prosecution introduced the ring, a strong piece of evidence. The ring was identified by Adelaide Wheeler, sister of Ruth, and the person whose persistence in the search led to the quick discovery of the tragedy.

The witness strikingly resembles Ruth Wheeler. As she testified Wolter, pale and tense, listened carefully to every word. As the ring was suddenly produced and handed to her he grasped the arm of Attorney Saper of his staff nervously.

Attorney Scott objected to every question, but was overruled.

Miss Wheeler maintained perfect self-control while testifying and identifying gruesome objects.

The defence secured an adjournment in order to have its medical experts on hand when the State medical witnesses were called to the stand.

Paint and Brush Identified.

The witness that broke Wolter's alibi was Jennie Fischer, the girl who sold the paint and brush with which Wolter is alleged to have painted the fireplace in his room after having burned the girl alive.

The girl, whom the defence believed in California, identified Wolter as the purchaser of the materials on the day of the murder, and also was positive of her identification of the paint and brush.

Attorney Scott for the defence did his best to have the girl's testimony kept from the record, but was overruled at every point.

Wolter appeared much shaken. He fell into his chair limply.

Assistant District Attorney Moss, questioning Miss Fischer, led her to tell how, while clerk in a 5 and 10-cent store, she sold a can of paint and a brush to Wolter on March 24, the day of the murder.

Testifies Willingly.

She identified both. They were found in Wolter's room, near the fireplace, in which Ruth Wheeler's body was partly incinerated. In identifying Wolter she said she recalled him "because he squinted his eyes as he spoke."

Attorney Scott attempted to get her to say that she had abandoned her trip to California against her will, being detained here to testify. She declared that she had willingly agreed to remain.

When she was excused Wolter smiled in a sickly fashion at the girl who had partly smashed his alibi.

Police Captain E. P. Hughes identified notebooks found in Wolter's trunks and the sack in which Ruth Wheeler's body was wrapped when found. The production of the sack caused the women in the crowded court to crane forward for a sight of it. The captain also identified the rope found on the victim's neck, some trinkets and bits of cloth.

Confident of Acquittal.

Attorney Wallace D. Scott, counsel for Wolter declared confidently to-day that the prosecution would be unable to prove that the charred body found on the fire escape at the rear of Wolter's apartment was that of the "missing" girl.

Unless the identification is established to the entire satisfaction of the jury, it will be impossible to convict Wolter, and his attorney says that identification cannot be positively made.

"They cannot prove me guilty," is the contention of Wolter and he apparently takes comfort in the belief.

NEWBURYPORT AEROPLANE IN THREE FLIGHTS

NEWBURYPORT, April 21.—Three successful flights were made shortly after sunrise to-day by A. M. Herring of New York in the Herring-Burgess biplane at their private aviation grounds on Plum Island. This is the second time the aeroplane has been tried out.

One each of the three flights to-day the machine traveled through the air from 25 to 30 feet from the ground. The first flight was of 100 yards, the second a little longer and the third 500 yards.

During each of the three flights the biplane rose quickly and gracefully from the ground and soared into the air. There was no hitch during any of the flights.

Because of the early hour the only persons who witnessed the flights were Mr. Burgess and his friends. Mrs. Burgess took some snapshots while the machine was in the air. Others who witnessed the flights were Norman Prince, the Boston millionaire, Joseph C. Schumaker, the New Jersey millionaire, for whom the present machine was built, George Bowman and "Bill" Hilliard of Boston.

"Great!" Says Burgess.

After the flights both Mr. Burgess and Mr. Herring were elated over the performance of the machine. Mr. Burgess said to an AMERICAN reporter:

"It was great. That machine is going to do wonders yet. To-morrow we will make another flight shortly after sunrise if the wind permits and the machine will probably be sent to an altitude of from 100 to 200 feet. To-day's flights were the most successful yet."

When the flights are made to-morrow a new control level will be tried out. It is being put on to-day.

The bi-plane which flied to-day is the only machine in the world which has ever successfully left the ground while under its own power. It has three skids, a long one in the centre and two shorter ones on either side. These are clad with steel runners like the ordinary boys' sled.

New Features on Aeroplane.

Mr. Burgess and Mr. Herring consider this one of the greatest features of their machine. They believe it is a great improvement over the small wheels which are used on most biplanes.

Another new feature on this machine which no other aeroplane boasts of is the series of overhead fins on top of the main plane, which prevent the machine from tipping when in the air. There are eight of these fins, and they are shaped like a leg-o'-mutton sail.

BIG BARGAINS IN RAINCOATS AT SALE

April showers may or may not bring May flowers. But it is a stern fact that they do bring insistent need of clothing adapted for the showery season. With the cost of living so high, the person of average purse often feels that a special garment for rainy weather is a luxury. But occasionally opportunity comes to purchase a raincoat to great advantage. Such an opportunity is now presented in Boston.

The Boston Raincoat Company at No. 20 Summer street is holding a "going out of business" sale. This concern has been notified that it must vacate after the expiration of its lease. The concern tried to obtain other quarters, but found it impossible to get just what it wished. Then orders came from New York headquarters to abandon the idea of relocating and to close out immediately the entire stock and fixtures.

DETECTIVES GUARD D. A. R. FROM THIEVES

WASHINGTON, April 21.—As a result of two daring thefts committed by pickpockets among members of the D. A. R., now in session in Continental Hall, Chief of Police Sylvester has detailed detectives to the hall to guard against another robbery and if possible arrest the thieves. A solitaire diamond ring valued at $3,000 was lost by one member, and another reported the theft of a rare jewel which she declined to appraise. According to a woman expert, $1,000,000 worth of jewelry was displayed by the daughters at each session of the congress. Mrs. John Miller Horton of the Buffalo chapter alone displays jewelled orders and ornaments estimated to be worth $10,000.

ELOPING GIRL WEDS AFTER OVERCOMING MANY OBSTACLES

MISS. MARIAN. WRIGHT.

WIRE PARDON FOR ELOPERS

"Congratulations, and may you both be ever happy," was the substance of a telegram received by Mrs. Le Grand Dutcher at the United States Hotel to-day from her mother, Mrs. F. A. Wright of Syracuse, N. Y.

Mrs. Dutcher, who was Miss Marian Wright, eloped to Boston with Mr. Dutcher of Utica last Sunday. They were unable to procure a license Tuesday, as it was a holiday. Wednesday Mr. Dutcher was again turned down by the registrar until the parents of each had given their consent. This was received last night, and in their room at the hotel Rev. Charles A. Fulton of the Dudley Street Church tied the knot.

"We are just the happiest people on earth," said Mrs. Dutcher to-day. "We have had a hard fight, but now it is all over, and we are just too happy for anything."

HOLD BABIES' DAY AT CITY GYMNASIUM

To-day was babies' day at the Columbia road gymnasium in the Municipal building at Upham's Corner. The members of the women's gymnasium class, formed when the gym was opened six years ago, brought their babies born in the last six years. Seventy baby boys and girls, ranging from six years down to infants in arms, were in the gathering and in the grand march, which was a feature of the proceedings.

The march was led by Margaret, the three-year-old daughter of Instructor George De Cost, and by Sylvia, the three-year-old daughter of Mrs. William Henderson of the babies' day committee.

The committee in charge included Mrs. Bert Gill, Mrs. William Henderson, Mrs. E. N. Dunham, Mrs. F. H. Scannell, Mrs. Alice R. Mann, Mrs. Henry Curtis, Mrs. A. H. Draper, Mrs. C. E. Roberts and Mrs. Clara Gainey.

GIRL TO APPEAR IN ROLE OF HAMLET

Students of the Leland Powers School will give their annual dramatic performance to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock in Potter Hall. Act 1 from Hamlet has been chosen for the more serious portion of the program, which is lightened with a one-act comedy as the afterpiece.

Miss Maud Scheerer is cast for the part of Hamlet.

TALK ON LIFE IN JAIL.

"Twenty-Two Years Behind the Prison Bars" will be the topic of the address to be given next Monday noon in Tremont Temple by Louis J. Bernhardt of the Yale Hope Mission, New Haven, Ct. Mr. Bernhardt has an interesting experience to tell about his past life, which has impressed many an audience in the Nutmeg State.

ROOSEVELTS ARE IN PARIS, CITY EN FETE

PARIS, April 21.—Theodore Roosevelt arrived in Paris this morning for the greatest triumph of his whirl through Europe. The Oriental Express drew into the Gare de L'Est three minutes behind the scheduled time, 7:30 o'clock. A moment later, amid the formal welcoming he declared himself "dee-lighted" at meeting two members of his famous tennis Cabinet—Ambassador Bacon, the host of the Roosevelt party in Paris, and M. Jusserand, French Ambassador to the United States, who came to France especially to aid in Mr. Roosevelt's reception in Paris.

The former President and Kermit were welcomed by a small crowd beside the officials. It was too early in the day for Parisians to turn out for anything in large numbers.

The first duty of Paris's guest was the formal call on President Fallieres at the Elysee palace and on M. Pinchon, the minister of foreign affairs. Convention called for the return of these visits.

Calls at the Palace.

Little was definitely mapped out for to-day save for these calls and the dinner to be held at the palace, where the most distinguished men of official circles were invited to meet Mr. Roosevelt, both Mme. Fallieres and Mrs. Roosevelt being present. Among the guests invited were ex-President Loubet, members of the Cabinet, and the Presidents of the Senate and of the Chamber of Deputies.

Mr. Roosevelt on his trips about Paris was readily recognized. The newspapers had printed scores of pictures of him and had given detailed instructions as to where he would be seen each day.

The result was to-day that the city was fully prepared. When he emerged from the American embassy to go to the palace there was a big crowd extending along the street in each direction, made gay by hundreds of American flags and the French tri-color.

Roosevelt is too cumbersome a name for a French crowd when it wants to cry "Vive," so the Parisians fell into the way of American politeal crowds, and it's "Vive Teddy" wherever he goes. Not only have the popular papers familiarized the public with Mr. Roosevelt's nickname but an advertiser who has displayed American ingenuity has plastered the entire city with placards bearing the one word, "Teddy."

At the Theatre To-night.

President Fallieres placed at the disposal of the family the presidential boxes at the Comedie Francaise and the opera, and it was planned to-day to have the Roosevelts attend the Comedie to-night.

The embassy was besieged by Americans seeking a chance to meet Mr. Roosevelt. He was not accessible, however. An American reception will be held to-morrow night at the embassy, the American Club, the American Chamber of Commerce and other bodies of Americans being the guests.

Although Mr. Roosevelt had insisted that he wished no more attention than due a private citizen, his reception at the Elysee was hardly different from that which would be accorded a monarch. Before the historic structure were drawn cordons of troops.

The meeting with the President was quiet. M. Fallieres did not relax in his well-known simplicity. The two men chatted for a long time. Mr. Roosevelt discoursed on French and Parisian affairs and history with intimate knowledge.

At the embassy he met General Brugere, chief of staff; M. B. Leroy Beaulieu of the French Institute; Ambassador Jusserand, Count Rochambeau and Marquis Lasteyrie, grandson of Lafayette.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke at length with Count Rochambeau concerning the ceremonies in Washington in the Spring of 1902, when the monument to Marshal Rochambeau was unveiled. The members of the French Commission that went to America to attend that ceremony are to be Mr. Roosevelt's hosts at dinner Monday.

Among others whom he met to-day were Baron Takahira, who is here en route to Italy, and Prefect of Police Lepin. With the latter Mr. Roosevelt discussed police affairs as he found them when police commissioner in New York. He laughingly admonished the famous policeman not to take any more trouble guarding him on his visit than he would for any other private citizen. M. Lepine, in answer, smiled his rare, dry smile.

The ex-President to-day issued a statement denying the report published in America in the form of an interview to the effect that he had declared he would do all possible to drive out of Rome the Methodists there, and calling them "A disgrace to any religion."

DO YOU LOVE HER YET?—Would you send your old sweetheart to the gallows, as one man may be called on to do? Read his fascinating predicament in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

A SQUARE-DEAL

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and these are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless—even to the most delicate women and children.

Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles in them, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or other organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures even the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on-coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

To find out more about the above mentioned diseases and all about the body in health and disease, get the Common Sense Medical Adviser—the People's Schoolmaster in Medicine—revised and up-to-date book of 1000 pages—which treats of diseased conditions and the practical, successful treatment thereof. HEARST PRAISES TAFT AND SAYS HE IS GIVING A GOOD ADMINISTRATION

WASHINGTON, April 21.—In response to requests for an interview of political conditions, William Randolph Hearst, who had been in Washington for the past few days on personal business, issued a statement to-day, in which he summed up from his point of view, the results of the first year of President Taft's administration. Beyond this statement Mr. Hearst said that he did not care to speak at this time concerning current political matters.

Mr. Hearst made a personal call on President Taft yesterday. The President and he chatted together about thirty minutes. It was said later that the call was wholly social. Mr. Hearst's statement follows:

"No one can talk with the President without appreciating and respecting his earnestness and sincerity. Personally I believe also in his efficiency.

Accomplishment of One Year.

"He has been one year in office, and he certainly accomplished more in that one year than Roosevelt did in his first year.

"It is hardly fair to compare Taft's one year with Roosevelt's seven, and yet I am not sure that even with that, the comparison might not be to Taft's advantage. Taft's methods are not those of Roosevelt, but then Taft will probably not conclude his term with a panic.

"On the whole, it seems to me that a quiet, earnest gentleman who came into office when the country was in the slough of adversity and, after one year of office has placed the country on the high road of prosperity, is quite as valuable a President as a more showy and spectacular person, who found the country in the height of prosperity and left it in depths of adversity.

"Roosevelt may not have been wholly responsible for the panic—I have never said that he was, and Taft may not be wholly responsible for the restoration of prosperity—I do not say that he is—but an administration which is earnestly and conscientiously and successfully engaged in restoring good times to a nation, in giving workingmen work and increased wages, in giving business men opportunities, in giving stockholders dividends, should not be too carpingly criticized for certain minor faults of omission or commission.

"Taft is carrying out Roosevelt's policies in the one way that they ought to be carried out. That is to say, he is doing the things that Roosevelt should have done but did not. Taft is making the Roosevelt railroad rate act complete and effective.

Roosevelt Act a Farce.

"The Roosevelt railroad rate act has always been an utter farce, and everybody who knew anything about the subject when it was passed knew it was a farce and would be a failure. It might have been meant to be a failure. At any rate, Mr. Hepburn, the gentleman who was selected by the Roosevelt administration to stand sponsor for that bill in the House but lately had been hung in effigy by his enthusiastic constituents for too great friendliness to the railroads.

"Would you have selected that kind of a man, tagged with that kind of a testimonial, to frame that kind of a bill? And can you imagine Mr. Roosevelt, the Diogenes of politics, hunting through the House of Congress, lantern in hand, to find an honest man and selecting this executed effigy as the fitting one to frame the people's railroad bill?

"Taft is trying to stiffen into an active force the spineless railroad rate bill of the last administration.

"Taft is prosecuting the criminal Sugar Trust, although all the damning evidence of grand and petit larceny, of which this shameless trust stands convicted, was submitted to the Roosevelt administration, and by that administration quietly smothered.

"Taft has passed the corporation tax bill.

"Taft is passing an over-capitalization bill, and a postal savings bank bill, and a parcels post bill, and he is laboring for an income tax bill.

"All these measures are good. Some of those the Roosevelt administration wilfully omitted, others it airily neglected, and some it discussed but never accomplished.

No Republican Will Do as Much.

"If the people want more of achievement than Taft is giving them, they must turn to another party, for I do not believe that there is another man in the Republican party who will do more or as much.

"Most certainly if the people want the tariff modified, they must turn to another party, for the tariff will never be modified by its beneficiaries. And its beneficiaries control the Republican party.

"I have always held that the tariff should be revised, not by the friends of the tariff but by the friends of the people.

"The Republican party is more than the friend of the tariff. It is the father of the tariff. And if the tariff is, in its turn, the mother of the trusts, we can surely never hope to see the tariff or trusts molested by the close family connections in the Republican party.

"WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST."

BIG WELCOME HOME TO FATHER SUPPLE

Members of St. John's and St. Hugh's churches, Roxbury, are preparing to make notable the home-coming of the Rev. Dr. P. J. Supple, the administrator of both congregations. It is planned to hold a great public reception at Intercolonial Hall, on Thursday night, May 12. A purse will be presented Dr. Supple. Whist and dancing will follow the formalities. Dr. Supple has been in Europe since January, when he had typhoid fever. He has spent much of his time in Rome and paid several visits to the Pope. Joseph O'Neil is chairman of the committee.

CAROLINA MERCHANT TAKES NEWTON BRIDE

William L. Reed, a merchant of Winston-Salem, N. C., is on his honeymoon to-day, with his bride, formerly Miss Rillie E. Garrison of Newton, whom he met when she was teaching elocution in Salem College, North Carolina. They were married last night. The bride wore the same wreath of orange blossoms that her mother wore thirty-nine years before. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Laurens Maclure, at No. 175 Newtonville avenue, her home.

DOWNEY HELD FOR DEATH OF SISTER

Joseph Downey, twenty years old, No. 15 Meehan street, Jamaica Plain, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of his sister Agnes, twenty-two, Monday night, was held in $3,000 to-day in West Roxbury court. Medical Examiner Leary testified he examined the body of the sister and found an enlargement of the heart which might have been caused by a blow on the abdomen. Captain Joseph Harriman, Station 13, brought out testimony to the effect that Thomas, a brother of the defendant, claims Joseph killed his sister by a blow on the stomach.

A NEW SKIN REMEDY.

That Stops Itching at Once.

A peculiar feature of Cadum, the new medical preparation for all skin diseases, is that, when applied, it stops the itching at once and the healing process begins immediately. It also excludes the air, as well as germs and microbes from the affected parts. This, together with its soothing, healing properties, makes Cadum wonderfully effective in curing Eczema, Salt Rheum, and troubles like Psoriasis, Ringworm, Scaly Skin, Rash, Acne, Herpes, Sores, Eruptions, Pimples, Blotches, Blackheads. Trial boxes at all druggists 10c.; large boxes 25c.

SWAMP-ROOT. is not recommended for everything; but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. At druggists in fifty cent and dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it.

COMET SEEN BY NAKED EYE AT HARVARD

Halley's comet was seen with the naked eye to-day at the Harvard College observatory. It can be seen to-morrow morning. If one wants to see the comet, according to the Harvard observatory experts, here is what he must do:

Arise at 3 o'clock to-morrow morning. At 12 minutes past 3 take a position looking due east by the compass. Then find Venus in the sky. Just a little to the left of Venus is the comet. It will take skill to find the comet on account of the glow in the sky from the moon. A telescope, home kind, will help a great deal.

The observation early to-day was taken by Professor O. C. Wendell of the Harvard observatory staff. The comet appeared in plain view at 3:48 a. m., and disappeared at 4:12 a. m. The comet was 15 degrees east of Venus and 8 degrees to the left of due east. The tail of the comet was 1½ degrees long.

THESE ARE NOT ALL LEMONS

Kicks About Pain in Wooden Leg.

WATERBURY, Ct., April 21.—In the almshouse lives Noah Carpenter, who lost a good leg fighting under Grant at Fort Donelson. Ever since he has been stumping about on a wooden leg. He asked the Board of Charities for another leg as the one he had was in such condition that he did not know whether he had rheumatism in it or the splinters stuck into him. It was decided that Noah was not worth a new leg, but was entitled to have the old one planed so that the splinters would not stick in him.

Pays $635 for Four Lemons.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Four lemons, done up in tissue paper in a little black valise, is all Hyman Blum, tailor, of No. 28 McKibbin street, Brooklyn, got for $635 he intrusted to two strangers. They told him they had a machine whereby the denomination placed on greenbacks by Uncle Sam might be "raised."

Women Weigh Their Meals.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—At the request of several of the women patrons of the New Willard small platform scales were installed in "Peacock Alley." The women said they wanted to know whether they were losing or gaining before and after meals.

Pet Hen Lays Twin Egg.

AVONDALE, N. S., April 21.—Little ten-year-old Carmena Ross has a pet Wyandotte hen that has just surprised her by laying a twin egg. This freak egg is slightly smaller than a normal hen's egg.

Divorce for Pitchfork.

RENO, Nev., April 21.—Mrs. James C. Dusenberry, wife of a rich resident of Portchester, N. Y., has been granted a divorce here. She alleged that her husband attacked her with a pitchfork.

C. W. MORSE DISABLED —BOAT, NOT BANKER

NEWBURG, N. Y., April 21.—The steamer Charles W. Morse, with more than 200 passengers on board, bound from Albany to New York, was disabled in the Hudson off this point early to-day. The piston rod of the engine broke and the vessel had to come to anchor. News of the accident was kept from the majority of the passengers until they awoke. Then they were brought here in small tugs to take passage to New York, whither the Morse will be towed.

FOUND DEAD IN BED FROM FUMES OF GAS

LOWELL, April 21.—George W. Furber, fifty-six, was found dead in bed to-day, with a gas tube in his mouth, in his room at the home of his cousin, Edward Sanborn, No. 79 Royal street. Furber had suffered from insomnia for two weeks and knew that his relatives ewre preparing to send him to a sanitarium.

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF MARKET IN REAL ESTATE

C. H. Lewis, Easton building, has sold the large apartment hotel at No. 32 Westland avenue, Back Bay, to Esther Conant of Dorchester, who buys for investment. The property consists of a large stone-front building, containing eight suites, and lot of 4,280 square feet of land. The land is assessed for $15,800, the building for $28,700, making a total assessment of $44,500. This property was recently purchased from Ida Dean of Providence.

Mr. Lewis takes as part payment for the same several pieces of property in Dorchester, the title being given by Janet O. Conant and James S. Conant, both of Dorchester, as follows:

Large estate at No. 1937 Dorchester avenue, corner of Bailey street, comprising a two-family house at No. 75 Bailey street, lot of land containing 26,[illegible] feet, with a total taxed value of about $15,[illegible]; single house at No. 1 Allerston street, corner of Bailey street, with 7,286 square feet of land, with total taxed value of $4,[illegible]; also a two-family house at No. 27 Bailey street, with 5,250 square feet, all taxed for $5,[illegible]; and lot of land containing 3,675 square feet, numbered 25 Bailey street, taxed for $[illegible]. The broker in the transaction was Luther W. [illegible], No. 60 State street.

Roswell G. Hall has sold to Frederick L. Duncanson the estate at No. 610 Massachusetts avenue, near Shawmut avenue, South End, containing a three and one-half-story swell-front brick house and 2,860 square feet of land, all assessed for $10,100, of which $5,300 is on the land.

The four-story swell front brick house and [illegible] square feet of land at No. 38 Worcester street, assessed for $7,500, have been sold by Mary Hayes to the Bethany Union for Young Women. The land is rated for $2,700. It is located near [illegible] place, South End.

Nellie G. Simpson has sold to Sarah Segal et al. a three-story octagon front brick house and 1,5[illegible] square feet of land on Shawmut street, near Harrison avenue, in the same district. This property is all taxed for $8,200, of which $1,700 is on the land.

Ellen Anderson has sold to Elsie M. Stevens the estate at No. 8 Burbank street, near Buckingham street, South End, comprising a two-story brick house and 858 square feet of land, all taxed for $3,000, of which $1,700 is on the land.

The office of Charles M. Conant, Old South building, reports the sale of 5,000 feet of land at Atlantic, to Branscheid & Martens, of that place. The grantor was Catherine E. Kelly of Dorchester. This lot is on Sagamore street, and adjoins land of the Old Colony Railroad Company, only a few steps from Atlantic station. It is the intention of the purchasers to immediately commence the erection of a brick and store building for business purposes.

Frank S. Mason, Thompson square, Charlestown, reports the sale of the estate at No. 21 Trenton street, extending through to Jefferson avenue, Charlestown, comprising a three-family house and 1,525 square feet of land, for Jane Dunn and as administrator to Helen M[illegible], who buys for occupancy. It is all taxed for $3,700, of which $1,[illegible] is on the land.

Another Charlestown property sold is that at No. 16 Harvard street, near Bow street, which has passed from Katherine R. [illegible] to Harry W. Conant. It comprises a brick house and 780 square feet of land, all assessed for $7,[illegible], of which $1,000 is on the land.

BRIDE-TO-BE, ONE OF A DOZEN ON LINER IN TO-DAY

MARGARET KING

O'MEARA GIVES SHIELDS TO 28

Police Commissioner O'Meara to-day raised twenty-eight reserve men to the duties of patrolmen. The men gathered at headquarters at 10:30 a. m., and were sworn in by Chief Clerk Thomas Ryan.

The men who thus are given an opportunity to learn the duties of a patrolman are Joseph A. Verkanten, Thomas S. J. Kavanagh, Henry A. Luent, Maurice P. Lee, Dennis F. Driscoll, Richard J. Buckley, William F. Foley, Thomas H. J. Waldron, Michael Lynch, Peter J. Hurley, Albert A. Sullivan, John E. O'Brien, Thomas S. J. McGrade, John J. Gorman, Jeremiah T. Sullivan, Owen A. Eaton, John S. J. Dolan, Dominick S. Stallman, Thomas P. Landrigan, Richard Murphy, James P. Doyle, Michael Noonan, Bartholomew D. Winn, James W. Gray, John P. Edwards, Walter B. King, Joseph J. Caddigan and Thomas H. Dowling.

CHEER COMING OF BRIDAL SHIP

Twelve brides-to-be arrived on the White Star liner Megantic to-day in response to letters from their sweethearts, who have been in this country some time earning money to furnish homes. One of the prettiest of the brides is Miss Margaret King, nineteen, who came from [illegible], Lancashire, England, to marry John Earnshaw of Fisherville, near Grafton, a textile expert, and twenty-one years old. The girl was one of the happiest in the second cabin to-day when she was allowed to greet Earnsaaw, who came well recommended.

The bride-to-be is petite, a blonde, and exceedingly pretty, with a color to her cheeks that rivals the bloom of a ripening peach. The couple will be married at the home of the groom in Fisherville.

"We were childhood sweethearts, and I have come over to marry John," said Miss King. "I am the daughter of Frederick King, and John is the son of Isaac Earnshaw. John has been in America two years."

Miss Olga Petersen, from Sweden, goes to Cheyenne, Wyo., to marry Frederick [illegible]undsen, and she will have covered nearly a thousand miles before she meets the man of her choice.

Most of the grooms were on the pier and cheered as the liner was docked.

BOY FALLS ON HEAD FROM A HAY LOFT

WAKEFIELD, April 21.—While playing with children in the hay loft of his father's barn, Frederick, ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Morton of Crescent street, fell through a hole, plunging headlong to the ground, fifteen feet below, and striking on the right side of his head. He is in a precarious condition, and specialists this afternoon are making an examination to determine whether there is a fracture of the skull.

$500 ANNUITY FOR MAYOR OF SALEM

SALEM, April 21.—Under the will of Joseph P. Howard, who died in New York December 12, 1909, his son, Mayor Arthur Howard of this city, secures an income of $500 during his life. Should Mayor Howard die leaving no issue, the principal will revert to the residuary estate. The testator left personal property appraised at $10,000. At the time of his death it was reported that he left property valued at $600,000.

SHOW PRODUCTS OF PORTO RICO

Porto Rican products, ranging from fragrant cigars to wooden models of plows and ox-yokes, all prettily displayed in the front window of the Riker-Jaynes store at No. 143 Summer street, account for the unusual attraction the window at the present time has for passers-by, hundreds of whom stop to admire the numerous articles on exhibition during the day.

The window was arranged by one of the Riker-Jaynes window experts, and is calculated to show up prominently the Porto Rican cigars, which the company handles direct from the Cayey Caguas plantation. The name of Diadona has been given to this brand.

But the cigars are by no means the most interesting object in the window, though they are fine enough to warm up the most ardent lovers of the weed. The Riker-Jaynes Company has secured a number of native articles, and one of the queerest is the wijern, made of a gourd and used for marking time in Porto Rican orchestration. Other home-made musical instruments are shown, such as a mandolin sort of affair, made of a gourd, and a stringed instrument of wood that might be called a guitar. Several wooden models are shown of native plows and ox yokes, with several machetes.

The Riker-Jaynes window is one of the show points of Summer street to-day because of its attractive cocoanuts in the husk, intermingled with cocoanut palm leaves and a display of Porto Rican products.

BRYAN LAUDS WORK OF THE NEWSPAPERS

CHICAGO, April 21.—William Jennings Bryan is on his way to his home at Lincoln, Neb., after a flying visit to Chicago. Mr. Bryan's presence in this city brought together representatives of the various warring factions in the local Democratic party and was responsible for the presence of Urey Woodson of Kentucky, secretary of the National organization. At a reception at the Newspaper Club, Mr. Bryan said: "If the newspapers of this country met the responsibilities that rest upon the consciences of men; if the newspapers of this country did their duty to the public there is not a wrong that could last a year in the United States."

STARVATION NEW CURE FOR CANCER

NEW YORK, April 21.—Dr. William Seaman Bainbridge told in a lecture to-day what wonders had been done in the treatment of cancer by ligation, a comparatively new method of dealing with cancer. It consists of shutting off the supply of blood from the seat of trouble by tieing up the larger vessels with ligatures. Cancer must have nutrition to grow, the surgeon explained, and ligation starves it.

HOUSE FIRM ON BAR BILL

By a rising vote of 40 to 71 and a subsequent roll call, which stood 62 to 129, the House of Representatives to-day refused to reconsider its action of yesterday when it passed the [illegible] and bottle bill for enactment.

The motion to reconsider was made by Representative Doyle of New Bedford, leader of the fight against the bill. It came immediately following the reading of the enacted bill. The motion is undebatable and a rising vote was called for. The bill now goes to the Senate, where it will come up for enactment this afternoon. It provides that no dealer shall hold a fourth and a first class license on the same premises.

JEFFRIES GIVES UP ALL HIS STUBBORN PLANS

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

ROWARDENNAN, Cal., April 21.—Is Jeffries becoming tractable? That is the question which is being asked around Camp Rowardennan. Heretofore the big fellow has done just what he pleased, as he pleased, and when he pleased. During the past three days he planned to do a lot of work, but was talked out of it as easily as though there wasn't a stubborn bone in his body.

"You have been working too hard and need a rest," said Berger. "You don't realize how much you have done and how badly you are in need of a layoff. You better go back and tear off a few yards of sleep this morning."

Berger's advice was given in response to a request that Berger don the gloves for a three-round workout. Much to the surprise of everyone, Jeffries agreed that his manager might be right and made a quick getaway to his open-air cot on the clubhouse veranda.

Diplomacy Has Won.

Berger's diplomacy has won a number of battles during the past few days, and now camp followers are wondering whether he is more of an adept at spreading the salve than managers who have preceded him, or whether Jeffries is really becoming more docile.

While Berger is anxious to have the former champion take things easy for the next ten days, there probably will be a different story to tell when Choynski puts in an appearance and when Bill Papke starts to hit the high places.

Papke has been taking only the mildest kind of exercise since he hit camp, but he has announced his intention of starting real training next week. Those who know Jeffries do not expect him to sit idly by and see anyone else in camp turning out hard work without taking a hand himself.

Jeffries, who seldom mentions his coming battle with Johnson, surprised his trainers this morning by remarking: "Well, it's ten weeks before the fight. It seems like a long time to train for a fight, don't it?"

"That's just what I've been trying to tell you," chimed in Berger. "That is the very reason I want you to take things easy for a while. You are already well advanced in your training, and too much of it is liable to send you stale."

Rest Helped Jeff.

It is plainly evident that the rest taken by Jeffries the past few days has done him a world of good. He is much better in spirits and today he displayed more ginger than at any time since entering camp. His program varied little from that of previous days. In fact, up to date the training routine has been little short of monotonous.

This is apparent from the limited number of visitors that have appeared in camp. Things will liven up, though, very shortly, and with Johnson installed in his training quarters at Ocean Beach the fight fans will have plenty to occupy their time.

PROUTY FOURTH IN BIG MARATHON

NEW YORK, April 21.—William Kolhemainen of Finland won the International professional Marathon race at Saratoga park, Brooklyn, covering the regulation distance in 2h. 51m. 9s. Five laps behind, Will Davis, a Canadian Indian, finished second, with F. Panzeri of Italy third, a lap behind Davis. Thirteen men started and six finished.

William F. Prouty of Boston and William C. Feeney of Brooklyn took fourth and fifth places in the order named.

PITTSBBURG IS BASEBALL CRAZY

PITTSBURG, April 21.—Pittsburg is baseball crazy on the morning of the opening of the season at Forbes field this afternoon. The world's champions arrived home from Cincinnati, where they lay idle for three days.

President Lynch of the National League will be the guest of honor.

ADDIE JOSS PITCHED FIRST NO-HIT GAME

CHICAGO, April 21.—Addie Joss pitched the first no-hit game of the season with Chicago as the victims. Cleveland won, 1 to 0, after a hard struggle. Only three locals reached first base, two on bases on balls and one on an excusable error by Bradley, and only one reached third. Joss also played a fine fielding game with ten assists.

FAMOUS PAVILION BURNS.

DENVER, Col., April 21.—The grand stand of the famous Overland race track was burned yesterday afternoon. The loss will be about $10,000. The management says the fire was of incendiary origin, but some believed crossed electric wires was the real cause.

LOUGHREY WINS AGAIN.

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—Frank Loughrey proved too strong for Tommy Carey in the windup at the Wayne A. C. in one of the fastest bouts ever witnessed there.

BASEBALL NEWS NOTES

Speaker, Lord and Wagner are hitting the ball. Just wait until big Jake Stahl "Rough" Carrigan and Amby McConnell start hitting, and then the fur will fly.

Charlie Hall and Eddie Cicotte must feel pretty chesty leading the team in batting. "You may rob me of my money and my jewelry," declared Cicotte, "but you can't rob me of my base hits."

The Red Sox are home until April 26. Then they go away on a short eastern trip, returning May 5 for a long session at the old stand.

Charlie Wagner made them open their eyes in New York by the way he covered short field. If there is any better shortstop in the American League he hasn't yet been discovered.

Why couldn't Harry Wolter, of the Yanks, bat that way when he was a Red Sox player? The last we saw of him over here he was mighty weak in pinches. Over in New York he is the best hitter on the team. But it's early yet. Maybe he will "come back."

Speaker is credited with the lowest fielding average of the Red Sox bunch. But that's all right. Tris can make an error now and then and no questions will be asked. All Tris has to do is to hit 'em and to make a few of those sensational catches.

Peaches Graham comes pretty near leading the league in batting. He is the old reliable of the Boston Nationals.

Collins, the Doves right fielder, improves as the season advances. He looks as though he could hit the ball some, too.

CHAMPION BOXING BOUTS IN CAMBRIDGE

The New England championship at 158 pounds will be held by the Riverside Boat Club of Cambridge on Friday evening, April 29, in Cyprus Hall. They will also hold events for the 105, 115, 125 and 135-pound amateurs.

Gold and silver watches will be awarded to the winners in each class, and the standard gold and silver medals of the N. E. A. A. U. will be given to winners of the 158-pound championship. Entries close next Tuesday with John J. Toomey, No. 36 Prospect street, Cambridge.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., April 21.—Dartmouth opened Spring football practice yesterday afternoon, when thirty-five men reported to Coach Tobin. The work consisted of passing and kicking the ball, but no attempt was made to try out the new rules. Coach Tobin did not believe that it would be worth while endeavoring to try out these changes in the few weeks that practice will be held. Dartmouth loses seven men this year by graduation—Tobin, Pishon, Brady, Lang, Johnson, Dingle and Bankart.

COAST LEAGUE LOSES.

CINCINNATI, April 21.—The contention by the Fresno club of the California State League that Joseph Bills, now with the Detroit Americans, should be considered a contract jumper, was denied to-day by the National Baseball Commission.

CUBS SELL ANOTHER.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Pitcher Geist of the Chicago Nationals was sold to-day to the Lincoln, Neb., club.

DUTCH CARR GETS DECISION

Jig Stone may now quit the ring. His old rival Dutch Carr put one over on him last night at the American A. C. when he beat Jig and won the decision in the feature bout on the card.

Jig was right there with the slugging but so was Dutch who seemed to like it a bit better than Jig. The body punching that Dutch handed to his old friend did the business as Jig is not quite so punch proof as he used to be and there was lacking that speed that Jig has shown lately. Perhaps Dutch's welts was the cause of the loss in Jig's steam.

Steve Kennedy of Lawrence and Kid McDonald of Roslindale boxed a six round draw but the visitor appeared to have the best of the argument. Kid Wright, another Lawrence boxer put Frank Mack of Roxbury in such a bad condition that the sponge came in the second round. Johnny Cavill made Benny Burke look like a novice for six rounds. Young Thomas of Lawrence held Tommy Flannagan of Cambridge even for six rounds.

JOHNSON GETS AWAY FOR COAST

CHICAGO, April 21.—Jack Johnson wound up his preliminary training in Chicago yesterday and will leave to-night for his permanent quarters, at Ocean Beach, California, where he will work for two months to put himself fit for his championship battle with Jeffries on July 4.

The champion's final preparation at his home consisted of a short jog on the road, during which he was the target of a snap shot brigade, and six rounds of lively boxing with George Cotton and Martin Cutler. Moving pictures machines were busy getting Johnson's every move during the bouts. Each man went three rounds with the big colored fellow and Cutler took a hard beating while neither of the trial horses laid a hand on the champion.

There will be ten in Johnson's party which will leave for California to-night. Johnson will be accompanied by his wife and his manager, George Little, and Mrs. Little and Mrs. Sig Hart, George Cotton, Barney Furey, Martin Cutler and Tom Little.

Johnson will not go directly to Ocean Beach, but will fill his theatrical engagements before he starts training at the California resort.

Before and After the Game

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

Our gallant Red Sox pitchers don't look so good to-day, do they? Likewise our dandy fielders aren't so dandy. Nor do our sluggers appear so invincible. Our boys were certainly suffering from the effects of that orgie of the afternoon before when they stuffed themselves with Washington pie. Our pitchers couldn't pitch, our fielders couldn't field and our batters couldn't bat. What are you going to do about it, you fans, after your twenty four hours of grouch? The answer is you'll be out there again to-day, just the same, letting by-gones be by-gones and yelling for the Speed Boys as you did on Tuesday.

Ray Collins was the only bright button on the coat of defeat. It was about time Patsy showed us a left-hander. Collins proved he was right there, but of course the game was hopelessly lost when he appeared on the mound and the other fellows didn't care much whether they made any more runs or not. Still, Ray comported himself as though he was fit to go the full distance and make a good showing and doubtless Donovan will have him in for the start of a game before long. A manager can't allow the newspapers or the public to run his team for him, however. No use saying Collins would have won the game had he been put in at the beginning. Smith is good enough pitcher for any club. He had an off day, that's all. Leroy was touched up for six safeties in the four innings he pitched, but the Chief would have had a much better record if his teammates had not made a series of bonehead plays. All hands were in a daze. That grand finish of Tuesday was too much for them. Such is baseball. World beaters to-day and dubs tomorrow.

Let us pass on to more pleasant topics. Have you noticed that Harry Hooper, our genteel left-fielder who wears his cap at such a delightful angle is taking a different swing at the ball these days, and have you noticed that he is cracking out the safeties with great regularity. The quiet Californian is a close observer. He noticed that Speaker, our leading batsman, stands up at the plate and waves his bat nonchalantly back and forth (not up and down), the movement of the bat being on a line with the way the ball is coming. The bat is thus in the best possible position to meet the ball.

Hooper watched Speaker's method carefully and the other day shifted his style to agree with the Texan's. Result, some fine base hits. He knocked out a slashing single in the fourth inning of that terrible slaughter and wound up with a terrific three-bagger to the right field fence in the ninth. Maybe it would pay some of our fellows who swing their bat up and down like a pump handle instead of waving it back and forth to get in line. Most of them do the right thing more or less, at that. Lord, McConnell and Niles always have their bat in good position to meet the ball.

This is not intended as a bit of advice to our Red Sox. It is simply en passant, as they say at the Kentucky Club.

They are going to have a lawyer for an umpire in the New England league. His name is James A. Byrne and he hails from Providence. Secretary J. Morse made the appointment yesterday. Mr. Byrne takes the place of John J. O'Brien of Lewiston, Me. (Carrigan's home town). Mr. O'Brien wrote Mr. Morse that he would be unable to serve this year. Lawyer Byrne will doubtless wonder what hit him when he strikes some of our New England League towns—not to mention any names.

Jerry McCarthy, the Red Sox mascot, is enjoying a few days vacation from school. Some of his youthful relatives are down with the measles. The players accuse Jerry of working a flim-flam to avoid attending school. He was down at club headquarters yesterday but was told that pay day wouldn't come around until next month.

President Taylor of the Red Sox is on his way to Cleveland to attend the festivities which go with the opening of the new Cleveland baseball park. He will return at once as only the most pressing invitation could make him miss a game here. Mr. Taylor had to leave the grounds yesterday before the slaughter began. He is a hard loser. Perhaps it was best that he left when he did.

HARVARD PLAYS DOUBLEHEADER

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 21.—After one inning of fast play, the opening game between Harvard and University of Virginia had to be called off this afternoon when a rainstorm set in.

Enough ball was played to show that Hicks has all of his last year's cunning and more. In Virginia's first inning Hicks struck out the three men at the top of the batting order, even though the ball was already wet and slippery.

In Harvard's half Potter got to first on a swift single past third, but the next three men—Lanigan, McLaughlin and Minot—were out on easy infield chances.

Determined not to go away with only one game played Harvard will meet Virginia in a double-header if the weather permits. Hicks and Young will be the Crimson battery in the first contest and Ernst and Bob Brown in the second.

Eastern League Games Today.

Montreal at Jersey City.
Toronto at Providence.
Buffalo at Baltimore.
Rochester at Newark.

EASTERN LEAGUE HAS ITS OPENING

The Eastern League opens its season to-day at Jersey City, Providence, Baltimore and Newark.

All the teams in the league have been strengthened this Spring, but Rochester, with several weak spots filled in, looks even better equipped to go into the race than any of its competitors. Last year Rochester won the championship with a percentage of .596, winning ninety games and losing sixty-one.

Of great interest to New Englanders will be the game in Providence today. The Providence nine is managed by Jimmy Collins, who played in Boston a dozen years.

Extensive preparations have been made for the opening in Providence. Hundreds of invitations have been sent to Boston people. The Grays look stronger than last year, and have a playing manager who shone in Minneapolis last season, and is now in shape to play his best ball every day.

Mr. Powers to-day engaged Tim Hurst, formerly of the American league staff of umpires, and ordered him to report at Jersey City.

CLOTHING STORE WINDOWS

Look into any clothing store window—especially in the high-price district—and see the prices they are getting for their goods. You will see tags on the clothes running anywhere from $20 to $40. Look at the lapels, the shoulders, the stitching on the edge of the coats. After you have done that, come over to our shop and ask to inspect any finished coat in the place—whether a $15 or $25 suit—and then decide whether you can afford to buy ready-made clothes or not.

Why! if we could induce every man in Boston to come to our shop and see the way we make our clothes—the cloth we use—the linings we use—the finished goods we turn out—there wouldn't be a clothing store in the high-rent district selling enough clothing to pay for keeping the plate glass windows washed.

Well, even if we can't induce everybody to come over here, we can induce you and we shall expect to see you today or this evening at 96 Court Street.

The price will be $15 to $25 for the suit—it will be made to your measure, guaranteed as to fit, style, wear and workmanship—and the front of the coat will be built after the style of our famous registered pattern, "The-front-that-won't-break-down." We are doing the biggest business of our 18-year career—and there's a reason.

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

DOES ANYBODY HERE KNOW WHO put that jinx on our baseball teams yesterday? The Red Sox slaughtered by those measly Senators and while this was going on our Doves were vainly trying to get a look-in over in New York. Oh, well, to-day is another day and the season is young yet. In addition to this some wise man remarked that we can't win every game, so let's turn out in force to-day and see if we can't help Mascot Jerry get revenge.

JOE WOODMAN BLEW INTO BOSTON yesterday with plenty of good things to say about the boxing game out on the Pacific Coast. Joe says Sam Langford is in grand shape for his bout with Stanley Ketchel next week, and hands it out cold that the newspapers of Philadelphia will have no chance of making a mistake in making the award in the no-decision bout. Langford will make his own decision, according to Mr. Woodman, and he will do it with the wallop that has put Flynn, Barry and a lot of others to sleep. I don't know about this, but I'm picking Sam to win, and I may take a notion to believe that he will put Ketchel away.

AND, FIGURING FARTHER, IN CASE Langford does knock Ketchel out before the expiration of the specified six rounds, how are we going to dope the Boston brunette's chances with Johnson? It took Johnson fourteen rounds to turn the trick and if Sam does it inside of six I see a whole lot of local sports pushing hard on the back pedal. I mean those boxing fans who know that Johnson would beat Sam to death if the two ever got into a ring. If Sam can trim Ketchel over the short distance, I'm going to believe that he'll beat Johnson if the champion ever gives him a chance. How about it?"

SOMEONE SLIPPED A NEW ONE TO Maffitt Flaherty at the Armory bouts Tuesday night. Flaherty had just called the O'Keefe-Deshler bout a draw, and his finding did not meet with the approval of part of the crowd. Maffitt stepped from the ring and was walking out to the corridor, when some rabid Deshlerite leaned over the railing and called out:

"Flaherty, you're a Nova Scotia crook."

"I've been called a good many things," said Flaherty afterward, "but this is the first time anyone ever handed me that one. By the way, wherein does a Nova Scotia crook differ from any other crook? I'd like to find out just how badly I'm insulted."

THE STAR PERFORMER IN THE Follies of 1910 is Johnny Kling, the one-time greatest catcher of the national game, for Johnny now seems to think that baseball will be tumbled from its high place if he is not bought at any ridiculous price he may demand of Chicago. No man is so big that this world—even the baseball world—cannot get along without him, and Kling will soon find this true. What do we care about Kling, anyway?

THERE'S SOME TRUTH IN WHAT this man says, but he should remember that it isn't often that Canada wins a really big event. Champions are more common in this country, you know.

> Straight Dope, Boston American:
>
> So we let a Canuck put something on us again. What? I guess we Americans are bad. Say, Mr., you just watch out and see the kind things they will do up home for this chap, and you may bet it will be fine. The trouble with the American public is—let me tell you—that if one of our fellows won the earth we would forget it in a week, and him, too. We would shake his hand and in ten days shake him. This Canuck will be given half of Canada. That's why they want to win. It means something. F. D. CHASE.

ALL NATIONS IN BETTER ROADS CONVENTION

By J. C. KERRISON.

The American Road Builders' Association, acting as the American representative of the Permanent International Road Association, recently sent out invitations to the Governors of the States and Territories of the United States and Canadian Provinces asking that each appoint delegates to the forthcoming second international road congress to be held at Brussels, Belgium, July 31 to August 8, 1910.

The second international road congress is the outgrowth of the first international road congress held at Paris in 1908. At that time a Permanent International Association was organized for the purpose of securing, translating and distributing among its members information concerning road construction and maintenance. Its membership numbered more than 2,300 from twenty-six civilized countries. The coming congress will bring together the leading road experts of the world, who will present papers and make addresses on road subjects.

That the American Road Builders' Association was selected to represent the International Association in America is a deserved tribute to the high character and standing of its membership, which includes all of the leading highway engineers and commissioners of the various states besides many others of national reputation in circles devoted to road construction and maintenance.

At the last meeting of the American Road Builders' Association a committee was appointed to make arrangements at Brussels for the American delegation. This committee consisted of Mr. Samuel Hill of Seattle, Mr. A. W. Campbell of Toronto and Mr. E. L. Powers of New York city. Mr. Hill went to Brussels, made the proper arrangements and also secured the concession from the Permanent International Committee for an English speaking section of the congress, where the work will be carried on in the English language.

From Indianapolis comes the interesting news that the American Motor Car Company has engaged Herbert H. Lytle to drive its cars in the more prominent racing events of the 1910 season; and that Lytle, in a try-out of the stock roadster speed model on the Indianapolis speedway, April 11, registered the terrific speed of eighty-six miles an hour.

Lytle was engaged in tuning up this particular car which he will drive in the season's races when the amazing speed burst was made.

The car has a sixty-horsepower engine and is equipped with the underslung frame, which has been a notable characteristic of certain American models in the past, and which is applied to four of the regular stock chasses this year.

RELEASED PLAYERS WON'T GET PRESENTS

CINCINNATI, April 21.—Presents to players released from teams which play for the world's championship, previous to the time of the big series, were tabooed by the National baseball commission in a rule which is an addition to those that govern the championship struggle. The rule follows:

"Rule 10—A player released by a club during the season in which it qualifies for the world's series, to another club in the same league, shall not participate in the proceeds of such series by present or award from his former teammates or any official of the releasing club."

TY COBB PROMISES TO BE VERY GOOD

DETROIT, April 21.—Tyrus Cobb offered to wager $25 with President Navin to-day that he would not be "chased" by an umpire this year. When it comes to a betting proposition Mr. Navin is game, but to-day he studied the proposition carefully and declined.

Ty says he will play ball this year and do no "kicking." being called out or safe will be all the same to him. They can do anything that an umpire can do to a player, but Cobb will positively not say a word, just play ball like a deaf mute.

BOSTON AMERICAN'S DOUBLE

The Story of Woman

HER DETHRONEMENT

By REV. ROLAND D. SAWYER.

THE steps by which a woman was dethroned from her original superior position are as follows:

An increasing population, with which industry so primitive could not keep pace, caused an exhaustion of primitive supplies, and men and women began to be in want; poverty appeared.

With the awakening of poverty, men began to be selfish. The idea of keeping things for themselves; the idea of property was born. This first began in matters of food, but it extended to other things, and as rude agriculture was existing, soon extended to land and huts.

Here occurs what Karl Marx calls the "arch traitor to humanity," the man who went out and stuck a stake down in some choice piece of ground, and said, "This is mine!"

Of course, this selfishness led to warfare, to the reign of brute strength, the strongest took the property.

And as man was stronger than woman he took it, and woman was expropriated.

The first step in woman's dethronement was begun; she was shut out from this first institution of civilization—property. Henceforth she must live with, and depend upon her male mate for material things.

Owning his hut and his land, this male was not long content to depend upon this freely choosing female mate to live with him; so when he killed a male, he captured and brought home the female mate of the dead male. She was his; he owned her, body and soul.

Thus in the second great institution of civilization, the family, woman was dethroned; the matriarchal marriage became patriarchal. From the proud position of the queen of the home, she was cast down to that of drudge and slave.

A state of savage warfare naturally led to some form of government—a league of the warriors for mutual defence. They chose as chief their best fighter; he should lead their battles. This compact was, of course, simply for purposes of war; the chiefs only led in battle; they had nothing to do with anything else.

The idea that government could regulate conduct, protect life and property, restrain private injuries, check evil, make laws, was a process of long, slow growth. But you see this state was a compact of warriors, and woman, not being one of these, was shut out; and in the third great institution of society, the state, she was disfranchised.

She was denied any voice or vote, and she remained in this sad condition to this day.

Man has always been religious; as Sabbatier says: "Man is an incorrigibly religious animal." The great forces of Nature that he could not understand he attributed to an unseen and more powerful race, the gods. The powerful, with him, were the males; he attributed to these gods that sex.

Even in the Hebrew Old Testament the angels and messengers of God are always male. Females — goddesses — were the product of a more developed society. Very early, there sprang up some organization of this religion, an organization of the dominant forces of society—that is, the males.

The gods were male, of course, the priests were male; the whole organization was by males and for males; the only part females had in it was to be exploited for their sex-function.

The fourth great institution, the church, was created, and woman, thus dethroned, was denied any part in it. Woman was then, by these steps, dethroned from her early proud position, excluded from all the four great institutions of society, and, of course, from all the minor institutions, which are but ramifications of these four.

It is womanhood in this condition that we see in the great ancient civilizations, where history begins to speak.

Curing An Ugly Husband

By KENNETT HARRIS

THE Bar T boy who had stopped at the stage station for dinner had a moving story of man's brutality to tell. To particularize: a certain ranchman had so far forgotten all decency, not to say propriety, as to pinion his wife's wrists behind her in his own vise-like grip and push her into a chicken house and lock the door on her.

"And all she done was to take after him with the butcher knife, the small-souled son of a gun," said the Bar T boy, indignantly. "He could outrun her like a mice, or he could have clum one o' them cottonwood an' stayed there till she got over her mad, but no, he had to take an' rassle her as if she'd be'n his own size an' shape. I wonder he didn't throw her an' hog-tie her! Say, Reddy, you tell me what show a woman's got with a coyote like that. I've a notion to ride over there an' beat him up a mess."

"You keep away," advised the stock-tender. "She'll probably find a way to bring him to time. The most of 'em do. The trouble with that lady is she's too brash and enthusiastic to keep from tipping her hand. She ought to gentle him like Charlie Planche's squaw did Charlie. Ever hear of that?"

The stock-tender heaved a regretful sigh and then resumed: "Yes, sir, if you'd seen Berthe Galmiche, you'd sure have took her for white and she had a considerable of style to her, too. She was plenty good enough for Charlie, anyway. Know Charlie? Well, he's a big son-of-a-gun with a mean disposition and as soon as he got the thing cinched, he begun to lay back his ears and roll his eyes, and Berthe had to walk wide and careful to get by him.

"They had a ranch up at the head of Willow Creek, forty miles from nowhere, but mighty good range and they lived there for clost on to a week afore Charlie acted up. One morning she asked him to chop some stove wood and he turned ugly.

"'Git out there an' chop it yourself,' he says. 'I am not choppin' no wood for no Injuns. Hurry now afore I get after you with a club.'

The Way She Treated Him

"'I'm goin',' she says, quiet and easy. 'Please don't club me.'

"So she went out to the woodpile and began to chop. Charlie followed her out to see that she didn't loaf on the job, an' he was standing about ten feet away when the axe flew out of her hand an' whizzed apast his head, just missing it, an' that's all.

"'My,' she says, 'I nearly hit you, didn't I, Charlie? That comes of handling tools you're not used to.'

"Charlie looked at her, but she seemed so innocent that he didn't do more than cuss her out, and he finally concluded he'd have to wait too long for his dinner if he waited for her to cut the wood, so he done it himself. A day or two after that he raised particular Cain about the way she'd fixed up a meat stew and throwed the plate on the floor.

"'Don't use any more bad words, Charlie,' she says, 'I'll see if I can't fix it up better for you.' So she put in a few herbs she had by her for seasonin' and het it up an' asked him to try it again.

"It tasted mighty good that time and he et a heap of it, and about half an hour after he was hollerin' like a good fellow with cramps in his stomach. He certainly did have 'em bad. She had to heat up stones to lay on him to give him a little ease, and she accidentally got 'em so hot it blistered all the skin off where Berthe put it. 'So sorry,' says Berthe, 'it must be that the meat was bad. Perhaps it was cookin' it twice that hurt it.'

"The next time Charlie got ugly she went out to the barn and rubbed his saddle cinches with a blacksmith's rasp till they was about wore through an' fixed the button of a prickly pear where it would do the most good inside the saddle. The result of that was that Charlie broke his collarbone and two fingers.

"About that time Charlie began to take notice that he was always meeting with accidents right after he'd been abusing Berthe. She never talked back to him and she never whimpered no matter what he done or said, but something unpleasant always happened before the day was out.

"About the last was when she was cleaning his gun for him and she shot the tip off his ear. I never knew how much of an accident that was till I seen her whang away offhand with a thirty-eight Colt and knock six insulators off a telegraph pole in six shots. Anyway while she was bandaging Charlie's head up, he told her what he'd been suspecting. 'And I'd like for you to let up on it, Berthe,' he says.

"Sure, They're All Alike"

"'Why, Charlie,' says Berthe, 'how could you think such things of me? Do you think your poor little Injun wife would aim to hurt her good, kind white husband? No, Charlie. But I'll tell you one thing,' she says. 'Being Injun, I believe in medicine, and I can't help thinking you make bad medicine when you get mad with me. Maybe I am wrong, but I don't know no better than to think so, and I'm terrible afraid that some time, when you say things to me the way you do and do things I don't like, the bad medicine will get to working and make the house catch fire while you're asleep and burn you up, or something awful like that. You try not to let such things happen, Charlie.'

"Charlie studied on it awhile and finally said he'd try not to, and he made such a good try of it that he's fat and well to-day, and if Berthe wants any blame thing there is, all she's got to do is mention it. But if she'd been brash and chased him with the butcher knife, Charlie would probably have killed her and hit the breeze for the Panhandle."

Her Mutable Years

By KENNETT HARRIS

THE Light of my Existence said, when first I went to call,
That twenty Summers o'er her head had passed, and that was all.
Of that I've not the slightest doubt, and as for little me,
As nearly as I figured out, my age was twenty-three.

We two were married in a year, and when she signed the book
I noticed something rather queer, at least it had that look.
While twenty-one was then her age, she with an air serene,
Approached the new recording page and wrote herself nineteen.

Years passed till on a certain date, just when I will not say,
I had some friends to celebrate My Ownest's natal day.
I'd touched the tip of thirty-six, if I made no mistake,
But twenty-five was all she'd fix in candles on her cake.

I'm getting on to fifty now, with silver in my hair,
And corrugations on my brow, a little worse for wear.
But Honey is as good as new, or better, bless her heart!
She says she's only thirty-two, and really looks the part.

It's rather funny, you'll agree, but every blessed year
I am forging right ahead and she is falling to the rear.
Of course I mustn't be too bold; it's best to hold your tongue,
But truly, hubby's growing old is making wifey young.

TO-DAY'S BEST STORY

THE children were not allowed in the kitchen, but nobody had ever forbidden them sniffing outside the door to catch the delicious odors which could be obtained by a close application of a small nose to a crack.

"Why, Ethel," said the mother, who discovered them in the entry just outside the kitchen door one Saturday morning, "why are you twitching Tommy and slapping him?"

"'Cause he isn't playing fair, mother," sad Ethel. "He's had five smells and I've only had four, and it's my turn."

"I am playing fair," asserted Tommy, his utterance smothered as he again applied his nose to the crack. "I've got an awful cold, and I can't smell half as much as she can."

CLEVER BLIND GIRL.

THE young woman who has translated into Italian "The Life of Helen Kellar" is Clelia Allegri, a blind orphan in the Institute for the Blind in Florence, Italy. Her father was an Italian professor, but he and his wife died when their daughter was only a few years old. The girl proved to be exceptionally bright. She did not use text books with words that could be read by the finger tips. She listened as one of the sisters read to her. She wrote several small books and next she had one of the teachers in the institute read "The Life of Helen Kellar" to her in English and she translated it into Italian.

Oh, Fie! Uncle Sam Calls the Housewife "Idle Woman"

By DOROTHY DIX.

HO, all ye wives and mothers, harken to this! The Government regards you as leading lives of Sybaritic ease and luxury, and in the forthcoming census report, you will be classified as "having no occupation."

The woman who acts, or sings, or writes, or clerks, or is a stenographer, or a bookkeeper is enrolled as a working woman, but the domestic woman figures in the census as a gay butterfly and idler.

That the housewife has "no occupation" will be news to the woman who got up in the morning, an hour before any of the remainder of the family, in order that she might get breakfast, and who stopped half a dozen times, while she was preparing it, to find her husband the pair of trousers he suddenly decided to wear for the day; to wash Tommy's ears, and comb Mary's hair, and dress the baby, and has sprinted from one end of the house to the other, continually answering calls for Mother.

Here Is a Small List

After breakfast, she has found her husband's hat and gloves, and gotten him off to business, taught the children their lessons, and seen that they were tidy for school; fixed the baby's bottle for the day; washed up the breakfast dishes; interviewed the groceryman and the butcher; gotten the soiled clothes up for the laundry; mended the torn ones and taken stains out of the stained ones; glanced over the paper, while she rocked the baby to sleep; run downtown to snatch up a bargain at a special sale; cut out a new dress for Mary; sewed buttons on her husband's coat, and creased his best trousers; got lunch ready for the children, by the time they got home from school; saw that they were washed up and combed up to go back to school; arbitrated a quarrel between Tommy and Mary; answered the telephone seventeen times; entertained six callers; received the delegation from the Missionary Society; wrote a paper on the Ancient Byzantine Empire, to read before the Ladies' Literary Society; fixed bread and butter for the children, when they came home from school; got dinner; cleaned up the dinner dishes, and set the kitchen to rights; put baby to sleep; helped the children a little with their lessons, and then settled down for the evening to be an entertaining companion to her husband.

To the woman who does all of these things, every day of her life—and there are millions of women who accomplish this marvel—it will sound like a sardonic joke to be told that she is classed among the idlers; that she is officially rated as having "no occupation." For it seems to the poor, deluded creature that she is pretty well occupied, and that she could give the traditional little bee points on how to be busy.

As a matter of fact, there is no other person, on earth, who labors so hard as does the mother of a family, in even moderate circumstances. She has not an eight-hour day, but an eighteen-hour day, and there are no days off, and no holiday for her, because the more the balance of the family rest, the more work it piles up on her.

And she is the only worker on earth who works just for her board and clothes, and gets the worst of the board and clothes at that, for in the average family everybody is considered before Mother.

The census report humor about the woman who does the real fundamental, indispensable work of the world, having "no occupation" might be taken as a merry quip, thrown in to lighten a heavy statistical report, except that it throws a searchlight on the popular estimation of woman's service, in the domestic relationship.

It is held to be of no account, a mere trifle not worth speaking of. Men whose wives cook for them, and wash for them, and sew for them, and nurse them when they are sick and give to them daily services so great that it would break them to pay for them, still speak with complacence of "supporting their wives."

The woman on the stage draws a big salary for ranting around for a couple of hours in mock heroics. The girl who typewrites in an office six hours a day gets her pay envelope on Saturday night. The woman who writes gets her check for the story or verses, that probably haven't taken a half a day to dash off.

These women are called working women and paid for their labor, but the domestic woman, whose work began before dawn and lasted until bedtime, has "no occupation."

God save the mark!

Women Themselves to Blame

And the queer part of it all is that women themselves are such sheep that they accept and coincide in this public opinion of the value of their labor. There isn't a day in the week that some busy house mother doesn't say to me that she wishes that she "could do something."

"Good Heavens," I cry, "how could you do any more than you are doing? Why, you are kept on the jump from morning until night."

"I mean something worth while," she says.

"Worth while," I answer aghast. "Why don't you know that no other work is worth while compared to making a man a comfortable home, and raising up a family of children to be good men and women?"

But she goes away unconvinced, and the reason of it is because woman's work in the home is so belittled. It isn't even rated as an occupation, instead of being placed, as it should be, among the learned professions.

There are a great many people who sit up nights, speculating about why women seem to prefer, of late, to work outside of the homes instead of in it. To these earnest seekers after knowledge we commend the census report.

Perhaps the fact that the Government holds that the hand that cooks its dinners, and rocks its cradles, and spanks its children, and patches its breeches has "no occupation," will suggest the answer to the conundrum.

The Money Craze

By WINIFRED BLACK

By WINIFRED BLACK

A MAN pretended to be crazy the other day out in Missouri, and they sent him to the insane asylum. When he arrived there one of the doctors recognized him as the man who had pretended to be crazy once before so as to be locked up in an asylum in Illinois. The man confessed.

"No," he said, "I am not crazy, but board is so high now I thought this was a good way of getting a good living cheap."

Not crazy! Why, he was crazier than any poor maniac in any asylum in the world.

Crazy about money—for it seems he had money. So crazy that he would rather live in the horrors of an insane asylum than spend his money for a quiet life somewhere else. He isn't the only person that's crazy about money.

I know a woman who will go without food so long that she gets a terrible headache—just to save money.

She has money. Not plenty of it, but enough to buy food and shelter and clothes for three women, let alone one. But she feels poorer than any beggar in the streets, so her money doesn't do her a particle of good.

"Money," cried a man I know the other day, "I never was so poor in my life as I have been since I've had a thousand dollars in the bank. I have to calculate and add and subtract every time I want to buy a friend a bunch of violets. I can't ask a woman out to dinner without getting off in a corner somewhere and counting up to see if I have money enough to pay the bills and have some left for my weekly deposit.

"I wish somebody would come and borrow the measly thousand and get rid of it for me, and then I could spend my money as it comes in and feel rich again."

I was out with a rich woman the other day and it began to rain. And I called a taxi to get home. The rich woman was so busy scheming how to get out of paying her share of the taxi bill that she couldn't speak a word all the way home.

And now every time she sees me she feels mean. And she looks it. I wonder if it's worth while to care so much about money as all that.

Crazy! Why, half the people in the world are crazy about money. But nobody locks them up in the asylums.

Jacques Futrelle, Writer, Picks Novels in Contest

JACQUES FUTRELLE, the well-known magazine writer, author of "The Thinking Machine" and other thrilling and entertaining mystery stories, has submitted to the "Best Novels" Editor his list of what, in his opinion, are the ten most entertaining, ennobling novels ever written. It will be seen that like thousands of others who have submitted their lists in this great contest, Mr. Futrelle heads his list with that powerful novel of Hugo's "Les Miserables." Here is Mr. Futrelle's letter:

"Best Novels" Editor:

May I submit my list of what I consider the ten best novels:

Les Miserables—Hugo.
Oliver Twist—Dickens.
Ten Thousand a Year—Warren.
The Light That Failed—Kipling.
The War of the Worlds—Wells.
Treasure Island—Stevenson.
Three Musketeers—Dumas.
Allan Quartermain—Haggard.
Tom Sawyer—Twain.
The Wandering Jew—Sue.

Yours sincerely,
Scituate. JACQUES FUTRELLE.

Now, what is YOUR opinion as to the ten best, most ennobling novels ever written? Send in YOUR opinion now. It will be carefully considered and you may win one of the cash prizes. Remember:

For the best list the American will give a prize of $10; for the next best a prize of $5, and for the next ten prizes of $1 each. The winning lists will be adjudged by a committee of Boston literary people.

Address "Best Novels" Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston.

LET THE GARDEN KEEP YOUR GOOD MAN HOME NIGHTS

THAT'S SOME GARDEN
HOW TO KEEP A HUSBAND HOME
I WONT LEAVE THIS HOUSE UNTIL I GET YOU HARRIS

NEWS ITEM.

STONEHAM, Mass., April 21.—Women, take notice. If you want to keep your husbands at home nights, spend the money that you get out of his pockets buying hens.

Hens, ladies, are guaranteed not only to lay in the Spring, but to keep Hubby by his family fireside.

Ofcourse, you must have a garden, in order that the fowls may have plenty of room to make the dirt fly. You can plant anythink you want to in the garden—it doesn't make a great deal of difference, for the hens will dig it up, and if they don't the rooster will—provided you have one.

Many a man, ladies, who used to go out every night after The Ghost walked has been kept at home by a garden full of sharp-toed hens.

Try it.

One esteemed citizen of Stoneham has found the raising of hens very profitable—although he loses money on the garden, and is still paying six per cent. on it.

P. S.—If your hens fly across the fence into the city of Melrose, tell your husband not to go after them, as he may get into a lawsuit.

GETTING EVEN

AN ironworker having had the worst of an argument with a friend, waited, therefore, until the enemy had retired to rest for the night. He then approached the street door, and knocked loudly to awaken him. Opening the bedroom window, the other hurriedly inquired what the noise was all about.

"Why," replied the outside man, "one of your windows is wide open."

"Which one?"

"Why, the one you have your head through," chuckled the other, as he went away, satisfied with the plot.

Miss Ball to Wed Popular Wellesley Man

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

MOST important among the post-Easter engagements is that announced by Mrs. George H. Ball of her older daughter, Miss Marian Ball, to Joseph S. Seabury of Boston and Wellesley Hills. The announcement was made at a pretty tea given at the Ball home on Bay State road.

Miss Ball is a sister of Miss Dorothy Ball, who is prominently identified with the Vincent and New Riding clubs, and of George G. Ball, who was president and first marshal of his class at Harvard, '08.

Mr. Seabury, who is a Harvard '04 man, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Seabury and is at present engaged in the manufacturing business. During his course at college he took part in the "Dickey" and "Pudding" shows and made a decided hit. He was also made a member of the Phi Delta Psi Club, commonly known as the "Owl."

Mr. Seabury is also a well-known tennis player, having taken part in many of the larger tournaments, including the national at New York.

The initial performance by the well-known club, the "Amateurs," is given tonight in Whitney Hall, Brookline, before a large and fashionable audience. The cast is composed of well-known society people and they present Maugham's comedy, "Jack Straw." This club is the first to give it since John Drew presented it here last season. It's a sparkling comedy of three acts.

The part of Jack Straw, played by Mr. Drew, is taken by Stuart Baird, Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman is Mrs. Parker Jennings, Philip E. Coyle plays Parker Jennings, Vincent, their son, is done by Richard F. Fuller, and Ethel, the daughter, by Miss Marion Gragg. The part of Lady Wanley is taken by Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, and that of Lady Wanley's confidential friend, Ambrose Holland, by Frederick B. Howland. Graydon Stetson takes the part of Lord Serio and Burton R. Miller is Adrian Von Bremer, the Pomeranian ambassador. Miss Frances W. Sprague plays Mrs. Withers, while the Rev. Lewis A. Abbott and his wife, Rosie Abbott, are done by William J. Pettis and Miss Helena Burnham, respectively.

Miss Leslie Lindsey is Flossie Squaretoes and D. T. McFarland, the butler.

Mrs. Samuel J. Mixter opened her home on Marlboro street yesterday for the second of Mrs. Everett C. Bumpus's talks on "Early Italian Art in the Hill Towns of Italy." The last of the talks was given a week ago at the home of Mrs. A. A. Thorndike on Commonwealth avenue.

Among the patronesses were Mrs. Brooks Adams, Mrs. Ralph Adams Cram, Mrs. Caleb L. Cunningham, Miss Sarah Crocker, Mrs. Amory Eliot, Mrs. Harold C. Ernst, Miss Alice Farnsworth, Mrs. Desmond Fitzgerald, Mrs. S. Richard Fuller, Mrs. John Chipman Gray, Mrs. Samuel J. Mixter, Mrs. Joseph R. Millett, Mrs. Edwin L. Motte, Mrs. J. Russell Reed, Mrs. John Hamilton Rice, Mrs. Charles P. Searle, Mrs. Oliver Crocker Stevens, Mrs. Eben C. Stanwood, Mrs. Henry R. Stedman, Mrs. Alden A. Thorndike and Mrs. Barrett Wendell.

There is much pleasant anticipation in the Founders' Day fete to be given at Mrs. Albert F. Bigelow's place, the "Uplands," on Warren street in Brookline on May 14 from 3 in the afternoon until 6.

One of the attractive features will be the Maypole dance on the lawn to be done by sixteen little girls. There will also be music and booths filled with flowers, toys, etc.

Afternoon tea will be served indoors and ices on the terrace. Goat and donkey rides under the trees will amuse the children. Motors will meet the Ipswich street cars at Heath street to take people to the fete for a small sum. All this is to be in aid of the Massachusetts Infant Asylum.

New Theatre Players Seen in Good Form

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

The players of the New Theatre Company held close to their bearings in "Don" last evening and gave the best performance of the week—a performance that hit the audience squarely on its funny bone, in spite of Mrs. Sinclair's repeated declarations that it was no laughing matter. But you noticed that Mrs. Sinclair met the audience more than half way and kept right on laughing.

It has been frequently explained by those who do not know that the real trouble with the New Theatre was not with its players, but with its plays, but those who passed the doorman at the Shubert yesterday could not honestly lend their indorsement to this criticism. As a play "Don" had all the quality you could reasonably expect—it waded knee deep through beautiful sentiment and put you on good terms with yourself for at least two hours. After that you had to take care of yourself.

Read and Be Scandalized.

And with all this came the most natural acting that the New Theatre company has exhibited. "Don" aroused your sympathies for the unfortunate and paraded before you the great human weakness of believing ill of your neighbor at the slightest provocation. When Stephen Bonnington persuaded Elizabeth Thompsett to cut loose from misery and leave her brutal husband, the good people in the play threw up their hands in scandalized horror. There could be but one reason for such a course, and to complicate matters Stephen carried the wretched girl to his parents' home, arriving almost simultaneously with his fiancee and her parents. The boy's humane motives were discarded, of course—humanity or sympathy never led a man into such conduct. And for three acts you sat on the edge of a smile, while everybody on the stage worked himself into a high fever.

"Don" settled no social problem, but it preached the golden rule with an ardor that was good for your circulation.

Some Delightful Acting.

The real delight of the performance was found in the sincere acting of the company. Mrs. H. Otis Dellenbaugh was a mother like your own—her boy could do no wrong, and if he did, he was the victim of a designing woman. Mrs. Dellenbaugh's emotions were good enough to belong to any parent. E. M. Holland took excellent care of himself as Canon Bonnington, and Miss Beverly Sitgreaves caught your fancy as Mrs. Sinclair, the mother of the girl whose young man had wandered into strange and dangerous pastures. The Stephen of Henry Kolker was direct and determined, and was a good match for Louis Calvert's impersonation of the self-called outraged husband. William McVey was capital in his moments of mental distress, and Thais Lawton played the "distressed unfortunate" earnestly. Miss Leah Bateman-Hunter was hardly convincing as the fiancee of Stephen, but you did admire her loyalty.

"Don" proved itself worthy of the splendid acting it developed.

The offering this evening will be Edward Sheldon's "The Nigger," a play that deals bluntly with the social and race problem.

DOUBLE LEGAL STAMPS MORNINGS

MID-WEEK NEWS OF THE CITY THEATRES

There will be but four more performances of Hanlon's "Superba" at the Globe Theatre.

Jack Sheehan's "Battle Royal" and "The Ducklings," a lively burlesque company, are at the Howard Athenaeum.

"The Mardi Gras" burlesquers will finish the week at Waldron's new Casino Theatre.

Le Compte, the man who plays with fire and is not scorched, is the sensation of the week at Keith's Theatre.

"The Nigger" will be offered at the Shubert Theatre this evening. "The School for Scandal" is scheduled for to-morrow evening. "Twelfth Night" on Saturday afternoon and "The Winter's Tale" on Saturday evening.

William T. Hodge and "A Man from Home" remain at the Park Theatre.

Eva Tanguay is making the "Follies of 1909" the most spirited kind of entertainment at the Boston Theatre.

The popularity of "The White Sister" continues at the Majestic Theatre. The play will leave town after the Saturday performances.

Charles Klein's "The Third Degree" continues at the Colonial Theatre, which is delighting large audiences.

"The Trocadero Burlesquers" are finding the going easy at the Gaiety Theatre.

"Roosevelt in Africa" is the feature picture at the Bowdoin Square Theatre.

Joe Welch, in "At Ellis Island," is the headline attractive at the American Music Hall.

Raymond Hitchcock is the big laugh distributer in "The Man Who Owns Broadway," at the Tremont Theatre.

John Craig and his players are thrilling large audiences with "The Prisoner of Zenda," at the Castle Square Theatre.

'Il Trovatore" is drawing crowded houses to the Boston Opera House.

George Sidney, in "The Joy Rider," is making the week at the Grand Opera House one of continued merriment.

Fritzi Scheff and "The Prima Donna" are on their last week at the Hollis Street Theatre.

Vaudeville and moving pictures of high class are making things worth while at the Hub Theatre.

The Aprile Troupe of musical wonders is the main feature of the show at Austin & Stone's Museum.

The programme at the Scenic Temple this week is one of the best since the opening of the house.

The new Palace Theatre is offering a vaudeville and motion picture programme of unusual merit.

"The Cherry Blossoms," at the Columbia Theatre is made especially attractive by the chorus of pretty girls.

Mrs. Fiske in "The Pillars of Society," will be the attraction at the Hollis Street Theatre next Monday.

James K. Hackett will come to the Majestic Theatre next week in "Monsieur Beaucaire."

"Three Twins" is booked as the attraction at the Boston Theatre next week.

John Craig will present "Rupert of Hentzau" at the Castle Square Theatre next week.

"Carmen" will be given by the Aborn Opera Company at the Boston Opera House next week.

"Three Weeks" will be the next attraction at the Grand Opera House.

Guiseppe Picco, baritone, formerly with the Boston Opera Company, has been engaged by Milton and Sargent Aborn, directors of the Aborn English Grand Opera Company. Mr. Picco will alternate with Ottley Cranston in the role of the Count de Luna in "Il Trovatore" this week. Bizet's "Carmen" will be given at the Boston Opera House next week.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

COPPER STOCKS STRONG TO-DAY

STATE STREET, April 21.—Stock market prices were better this forenoon, largely through short covering operations. There was no news and little interest was displayed in the course of prices. Steel, which dominated yesterday's stock market, had a point advance. London was reported a considerable buyer of this stock this morning.

Copper stocks were strong and in some cases the opening was a point or two above yesterday's closing. This was true in the case of Lake which rose 3 points, and Calumet & Arizona which came 2 points higher. North Butte recovered 1¾ points from yesterday's closing, and Arizona Commercial showed a firmer tone.

Opening prices in Wall Street were irregular, taking the lead from London, where the course of prices was uneven. The Bank of England shows a great improvement in its proportion of reserve to liability, which may cause a cessation of gold exports.

There was less pessimism than yesterday even although it is admitted that the stel trade reports indicate a steady falling off in the condition of the industry, compared with the earlier part of the year. The market has been pretty thoroughly sold and a rally is due. The consensus of opinion is that it ought to go a little further.

Curb prices were soft, especially for New Baltic and Rhode Island Coal. Nevada Utah, which broke the $1 mark the first of the week, sold down close to 90 cents this forenoon.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

There is no doubt that the more important interests in the street are optimistic and do not mind recessions. On the contrary, it may be said they are glad to see them come, as they facilitate accumulation.

$ $ $

Good bonds are cheap, and while not exactly on the bargain counter, the income from them is of a satisfactory nature in ordinary times. However, were conditions not out of the ordinary these issues would not be selling as low as they do. Some of the highest grade bonds bring in more than four per cent., and they are absolutely safe. In the case of the others referred to safety is not their main recommendation. In fact, they are not so good from an investment point of view as many stocks.

$ $ $

Now that the monthly copper reports will appear as usual the shorts find themselves deprived of some of their ammunition. The showings made have been fair and without prejudice and both bulls and bears have had the advantage of them. No favoritism has been shown in any way.

$ $ $

On the copper situation, expert opinion is divided. Hornblower & Weeks, a high authority, says: "Whereas, on January 1, 1909, the stock of copper metal on hand was 122,357,266 pounds, on January 1, 1910, it was 144,003,567 pounds, and has been reduced since to 123,824,000. In other words, the copper stock on hand, as of April 1, is only about 1,500,000 pounds greater than fifteen months ago, in face of an increase in production from 103,000,000 pounds in February, 1909, to 120,000,000 pounds in March, 1910. The present situation, as reflected by an average price of copper stocks, is only natural in view of developments. Its improvements, on the other hand, will depend upon general conditions in the copper metal situation, which at present do not indicate any instant rise in the price of copper metal beyond 13 to 14 cents."

The result of the Congressional election in New York confirmed the conditions of unrest drawn from the Massachusetts vote by certain politico-economic seers who see in these fore-elections a radical change in public opinion on economic questions that, while sound and sane in their effect, ultimately may be temporarily disturbing, they see renewed agitation of the tariff problem and a revision the opposite of what the Administration sanctioned last year.

$ $ $

Crop conditions could not be better in any part of the country. The supply of copper and pig iron for manufacturing purposes is abundant at low prices. Wage disputes are being adjusted with surprising rapidity. Even though new orders may not come to the trusts as rapidly as they have been coming, there is enough business already in hand to insure record earnings for the trusts and the railroads this Summer. No justification can, therefore, be found for reduction of dividends. There is always the possibility also that public sentiment may change in regard to the crusade against the trusts. When the grocery bills are smaller the speculators who are short of the market may find themselves in a very serious predicament.

'BREAKERS' AT MILL QUIT AT GIRL'S APPEAL

Following an appeal by Miss Mabel Gillispie, the Radcliffe graduate who is acting as picket leader to the girl strikers at the Roxbury carpet mill, ten Polanders, who have been employed for three weeks as strike-breakers, left their work and announced they would no longer oppose a strike of women.

Hundreds of strikers and strike sympathizers crowded about the men as they left the mill in a body and escorted them as far as the trolley line on Tremont street, cheering loudly and throwing their hats in the air. Employes of other factories along the route quickly learned the news and crowded to the windows to add to the enthusiasm.

The action of the ten Polanders leaves but one person in the weave room of the mill, where 121 were formerly employed.

This employe is Miss Kate Hepburn, who has been in the employ of the company a long time and who was escorted from her work last night by a police guard.

To-day Miss Gillispie forced her way between the police who were escorting the Polanders to work and secured an interview with the leader of the strike-breakers. Miss Gillispie took the strike-breaker by the arm and walked along the street with him for several rods, despite the protests of the police.

To the leader she said: "We are not trying to fight you, and do not want you to fight us. What would your mother think if she knew you were keeping some poor girl out of her job? What would you think if some other man kept your wife or daughter from her work?"

Two hours later the ten Polish workmen marched out. When they reached the street the leader announced in broken English: "We are men, and we not keep women and girls out of their jobs any longer."

The McCrumm Howell Company, Park Av. and 41st St., New York city, 24th Consecutive preferred stock dividend.

A quarterly dividend of one and three-fourths per cent. on the preferred stock has been declared payable May 1st, 1910, to preferred stockholders of record at the close of business April 23rd, 1910. Books close at 3 p. m., April 23rd, 1910. Reopen May 2nd, 1910. L. Preston Gates, Asst. Treasurer.

Crime and Insanity

What Should We Find if We Looked Into the Brain of Wolter, Indicted for Murder—and Himself a Victim?

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

A depraved boy—he is scarcely a man—is on trial for murder in New York City.

It is not pre-judging his case, only expressing the opinion of the prosecution and the testimony of all the evidence, to say that there is little if any hope of proving his innocence.

The crime charged against him is the dreadful murder of a helpless girl.

Wolter, the accused youth, appeared in court and sat while men were chosen to act as his jurors.

Their decision, if it be against him, will end in his electrocution.

Civilized society, which still punishes murder with murder, will—if he be convicted—kill this boy to "vindicate justice."

To the judge, the jurymen called, and to all the spectators the scene in court was solemn—to all except Wolter himself.

The accused youth smiled and joked. Many things struck him as amusing.

Crime, murder especially, is the result of a combination of animalism and insanity.

The animals behind us in the scale of evolution were nearly all of them murderers, and nearly all of them lived by murder.

In the forest each animal that you see lives by murdering something else—excepting the innocent, vegetarian animals, and they murder plants.

The hawk kills the owl, the owl kills the mouse, and the mouse kills beetles.

Our modern murderer of the Wolter type, joking, laughing at his own trial for murder, is simply a human being in whom murderous animality, unchecked by mental development, or aggravated by a disorganized mind, still survives.

If he be guilty, Wolter will be electrocuted, and he will joke with the men that watch him in his death cell, and he will shiver with fear when the time arrives to crop his hair and cut his collar low to meet the electrode—he will shiver as the murderous weasel shivers when the hawk pounces on it.

What does Society gain by killing these half-insane and half-animal criminals?

What infinite harm Society does—what a sin organized humanity commits—in keeping up the tradition that anger is properly expressed BY KILLING?

While justice and authority keep at hand the noose, the electric chair and the guillotine, how can you expect the half-insane criminal to lay aside his revolver and his knife?

Wouldn't it be more worthy of what we call civilization to take these wretched criminals, and restrain them—make it impossible for them to reproduce a malformed brain, and make it impossible for the criminal to say to Society, "You commit murder on ME if you catch me. Why should I not follow your example?"

There was a time when children almost in their babyhood were publicly hanged for stealing petty sums. There is on record at least one case in England where a man committed perjury, swearing that an article stolen was worth less than its actual value, IN ORDER TO SAVE A YOUNG CHILD FROM THE GALLOWS!

Is the half-insane, entirely ignorant criminal any less a child in mind, merely because twenty-five years have passed over his head?

Should not civilization set the example of forbearance, justice, education and kindness, instead of IMITATING the murderer by murdering him?

A Great Genius for Publicity

For Colonel Roosevelt, truly, all the world is a stage and men and women merely spectators. Was there ever a political actor of such vigor and versatility? From the mighty hunter in Africa, before whose trusty rifle elephants and hippopotami fall in heaps, to the unrivalled monologist on the virtues and vices of mankind, is to him an easy transition, hardly requiring a change of costume.

And with what magnificent cocksuredness he shoots out phrases that cause palpitation to aspiring patriots, revered ecclesiastics and monarchs who were considered "some pumpkins" in their own territory, if not beyond, until the great American Rough Rider made his appearance in their domains. What a genius for stage management he has shown!

For the part of the great apostle of religious tolerance what better background could have been found than the Eternal City, the seat of the world's greatest religious autocrat? And for the conference with Clifford Pinchot, valiant champion of forest conservation in the United States, what more befitting scene than the wooded groves of Maurizio?

The French press has been marvelling during the past few weeks over the genius which Colonel Roosevelt has shown for publicity. They confess that, in the working out of scenic detail, their own Sardou was a second-rater as compared to the great actor-manager of Oyster Bay.

And what, forsooth, may be the portent of this series of performances which is setting the whole world agape with wonder? Can any but the dullest witted fail to comprehend that they are merely preparatory and preliminary to the production of that great political drama, "The Return from Elba"?

Is it possible that these words spoken to the Egyptians may have been intended for effect upon a people far remote from the Pyramids and the Sphinx?

"Some foolish persons believe that the granting of a paper constitution, prefaced by some high-sounding declarations, in itself confers the powers of self-government. This was never so."

Strange words to be spoken by a man who has been twice President of the country of Washington and Lincoln to a gathering of young patriots passionate in their desire to obtain self-government for their own beloved land—a land much better prepared for it than Turkey, whose constitution Colonel Roosevelt lauded, or Cuba, for whose freedom he fought.

Surely if declarations of independence and written constitutions are mere sound, signifying nothing as to the readiness of a people to govern themselves, how contemptible in the mind of the mighty hunter must be an unwritten law that no President of the United States shall have a third term.

Pinning the Blue Ribbon on the Lowly Spud

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR NEW ENGLAND BOOSTERS

By MERTON E. BURKE

Many New Englanders at the present time are dazzled by the artistic portrayals—in some of the magazines and newspapers—of the great agricultural opportunities of the West—of the enormous profits of apple growing in Oregon, of the wealth that is gathered from the peach trees of Colorado, of the golden harvest of the California orange groves.

Nevertheless,

The richest agricultural county in the entire country is in New England.

A significant fact, that, and one that indicates New England is much in need of well-merited "boosting" as an agricultural district.

In this county, greater profits for the amount of money and labor invested are realized from the raising of the unpicturesque but highly necessary potato than are garnered from the Oregon orchards, the Colorado peach trees or the California citrus groves.

I refer to Aroostook County, Maine, where about $12,000,000 was added to the bank accounts of the farmers of that district as the result of their last Summer's toil. In no section of the West can these figures be approached.

Aroostook farmers have discovered the "get-rich-quick" formula, and are pinning the blue ribbon of agriculture on the lowly "spud."

The population of the county is 80,000. The banks of the district record deposits of $100,000,000. That makes something like an average of $1,250 for each man, woman and child in the county—rather above the country's average of $37.50.

The soil of Aroostook is particularly good for potato growing, but not better than in many other sections of New England. The farmers can by no means gather the wealth they are accumulating without intelligent labor. Modern methods of painting, fertilizing and housing are in operation. The never-do-well and the shiftless find no more success here than anywhere else. Constant vigilance against pest and potato diseases contribute to the great profits of the harvest.

In 1908 Maine's crop amounted 15,000,000 bushels. Last year 17,067,092 bushels were harvested from a total acreage of 87,077, an average of 196 bushels to an acre.

Of the $12,000,000 which this crop realized, fully $7,000,000 was profit.

A yield of 150 bushels an acre is considered a good harvest, though some Maine fields yield as high as 600 bushels to the acre. The farmer gets on an average 62 cents a bushel.

In Cumberland County, last year, a newly organized seed potato company produced over 200 bushels an acre. In York County J. O. Du Bois of Kennebunk had a yield of 748 bushels of market potatoes from two and one-half acres of measured land. A Winthrop farmer, in Kennebec County, grew 2,500 bushels of marketable stock on ten acres, and sold them for 65 cents a bushel.

W. L. Gray of Waldo County raised 4,000 bushels on 10½ acres, and C. E. Libby of the same locality had a yield of over 12,000 bushels on 40 acres. At Richmond, in Sagadahoc County, as high as 400 bushels of potatoes an acre was obtained, and in Somerset County, near Skowhegan, Fred E Davis harvested 569 bushels from one acre and 520 from another.

In a special attempt for a record, George H. Fish of Hope, Me., grew on a measured acre 611 bushels of potatoes. He won a prize of $100.

The fourth prize in the same contest went to Bradley C. Newell of Rowe, Franklin County, Mass. He had a total of 471½ bushels from his acre.

That this is not a single exceptional case is shown by the fact that in Hampshire County, Massachusetts, N. K. Lincoln grew 342 bushels on a measured acre.

Here is evidence that what the Maine farmer has done the Massachusetts farmer can do if he will. In many sections of the old Bay State the soil and climatic conditions are just as suitable, we are told by the government experts.

Potato growing is, with fruit culture, one of the greatest opportunities before the Massachusetts land owner, according to Dr. Charles D. Woods, the director of the Maine agricultural station at Orono.

The agricultural possibilities of New England are by no means appreciated.

New England needs most of all, it would seem, a little "boosting" to offset the Western campaign of promotion.

She was a maiden all forlorn;
He was a census man.
He called on her one April morn
Just as the day began.

He asked her was she married, and
She said: "I don't know you.
"But here's my heart and here's my hand;
I'll always love you true."

These words of hers did flabbergast
That bashful census man.
To tell her "no!" he didn't dast,
And so the rummy ran.

Twelve silly gilly rilly girlies singing "Silly Billie, I Want You" dashed madly through "The Little Butcher" last night at the Fodal Theatre. My goodness, I don't know how I sat through the thing. The girlies were all that you could see. Just as the father was about to throw the sassy daughter out of the house the girlies rushed in and sang about Billy. When the burglar jumped from the sixth floor with the family jewels under his wing and was about to light near the footlights out came the girlies again chirping about Billy. I have seen the same thing in Berlin fifty-six times.

GARTER TO BEAT IT

Bark Will Rescue Kid Poet from the Jug.

The editor of the Bark is doing his best to get John Garter, the boy burglar, out of jail. Then years ago John was arrested for assault and battery upon a boiled ham. He was only a child at that time and had no idea that he was doing wrong. He has written some beautiful poems while in the coop and we think that if he were released he would be a bear at the Alfred Austin stuff. The following poem is reprinted from the Quenchery Magazine:

*MAI ANCORA.

Dedicated to His Nobs, the Governor.

By NUMBER 9009.

JOHN GARTER THE CONVICT POET

Please turn me loose
From this here place,
I'm just a deuce
And you're the ace.

PAUL FEDINCK OUR FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT

Vienna, April 18, 10 A. M.—Bwana Tumbo has just beaten Emperor Francis Joseph six games of pinochle.

St. Petersburg, 10:30 — Bwana Tumbo wanted to play handball with the Czar, but Nick wasn't game. He said the ball reminded him of a bomb.

Berlin, 11:15—Bwana Tumbo told the Kaiser how he made dill pickles. Simultaneously Wilhelm told B. T. how baseball should be played. Bout lasted six rounds. No decision.

The Hague, 11:52—Bwana Tumbo took luncheon with Queen Wilhelmina. Said the pie was not like the kind his mother used to make. Wilhelmina in tears.

Pilsen, Bohemia, 12:10—Bwana Tumbo made a speech, praising our fair city as the Milwaukee of Europe. Speared six and beat it.

Christiania, 1:01—Bwana Tumbo beat King Haakon in a ski-jumping contest. Made a speech in praise of Sweden. Great excitement.

Paris, 1:58—President Fallieres welcomed Bwana Tumbo, but ducked challenge to fencing match. B. T. visited tomb of Napoleon and said: "Wait till you see mine."

London, 2:14—Bwana Tumbo gave King Ed a hot tip on the races. King Ed played it and lost. International complications feared.

Dublin, 2:17—Pace is too swift. I resign.

SPORTING NEWS

Our correspondent at Rowardennan writes the latest news from Jeff's camp.

Sam Berger, manager of Jeffries, stepped on a pillow slip this morning and got a cramp in his back. There will be no roadwork to-day.

Trainer Berger announces that Jerry Oats will be added to the staff of trainers this week.

Mr. Sam Berger, of the Berger Building, 'Frisco, announces a special sale of silk socks at the big store this week. The pair that Jeff will wear in the ring on July 4 are now on exhibition in the window.

Sam Berger is not feeling well this evening. Some one put an orange peel in his mush at supper.

Dear Tad—You are making it a talk about fighters, eh. Here we got a bunch of champions: Joe Bernstein, Leach Cross, Joe Choynski, Sam Berger, Abe Attell, Young Josephs, Solly Goldstein, Sammy Smith, Maxie Baker, Mickey McDonough. Yours M. K.

Our Daily Story.

Adapted from the play, "SHUSH," written by Paul Weaklegs. Mr. Henry Limburger, one of the greatest ink slingers that ever wore a hat has written this thrilling tale for the Bark. Of course we spent a bundle of gilt getting Mr. Limburger to do this, but as we are always trying to please our readers, this is nothing out of the ordinary.

Chapter I.

Old Hen Johnson, the village chiropodist, was sitting at the little table in the dining room tunneling his way through a piece of pickled shortcake when there was a knock at the door. Bang! bang! bang! went the knock. Hen looked up, he knew that there was something screwey in the air, and felt for the gat in his hind pocket. He arose from the table, yanked the cannon from its resting place and pulled the door open. Just at that moment a——
